Diamond, 2000 Carats
Germany Does. Why Not We?
Ladies, News for You
The Hired Killer Kills

—By Arthur Brisbane—

ADVENTUROUS young gentlemen will read with some excitement: "In upper waters of the Saobento river, Brazil, prospectors have found a collection of large diamonds, including one weighing 2000 carats, next to the biggest ever discovered."

Diamonds are something like human brains. This diamond, if of fine quality, would be worth $10,000,000, whereas of inferior quality, good only to make diamond drills, it might be worth only $1000.

The brain of Edison, creating work for millions of men, is worth many BILLIONS, while millions of other brains are not worth ten cents the dozen.

Also, this diamond emphasizes the importance of the right education and training. Left in the rough, the diamond would be only a curiosity. It must be cut and polished, then comes its value.

So with human raw material. It needs the cutting of education, and the polishing of experience.

What applies to diamonds and human beings applies to other substances. A ton of iron in the rough might be worth ten or fifteen dollars. The same ton of iron, scientifically treated and made into a ton of fine watch springs, would be worth several million dollars.

Herr Eckener, veteran German flier, will take his big Zeppelin from Germany to South America, then from Brazil to the Chicago "Century of Progress" Exposition.

This country, which has the money, the engineering skill, and practically everything but the enterprise and the courage, will look on while Germany does what this country has been unable to do.

We are going to lag on to the German achievement, however, by printing postage stamps at 50 cents apiece, to carry Zeppelin mail to the Chicago Exposition and give us a little income.

There was a day when the American nation, if it saw another country flying across the ocean to South America, north to Chicago and back to Germany, would not be content merely to print a 50-cent stamp in honor of the event. Perhaps when we get over our little patching of payrolls and hours we shall return to doing real things, indicating power and ambition.

Two pieces of news to interest every woman.

Number one: A woman of

AMERICANS HELD PRISONERS BY CUBANS

Havana, Sept. 23 (AP)—Sixteen Americans and Britons, including three women and five children were prisoners today in their own homes at the Tanamo Sugar Mills, near the north coast of Oriente province, and the United States destroyer Hamilton made preparations to take them aboard.

If the prisoners are taken aboard the Hamilton it will be the first time in the recent period of unrest when a warship was considered necessary for that purpose.

FORD TO PUSH PROBE INTO CLOSED BANKS

New Roosevelt appointees will co-operate in a drastic investigation of the affairs of all closed banks in this section, it was learned today. Probe has already started of the Boston-Continental National Bank, where James H. Brennan recently replaced the former receiver, and this and other bank probes will come under Francis J. W. Ford, new U. S. attorney. (Other details Page 3).

MILTON CHIEF SUSPENDED IN BRIBE

Chief James R. Travers of the Milton police department, today was suspended by unanimous vote of the selectmen of that town. He was charged with soliciting a bribe in Quincy.

Details of the accusation, however, were not made public, nor would any of the selectmen comment on the case other than to say that the chief would be granted a hearing.

The action came as a distinct surprise, being the result of a secret investigation. Charges were preferred against Travers by a Quincy woman, it was learned in the State House, where it was also ascertained that Gen. Daniel Needham, state commissioner of public safety took part in the probe.

It is understood that the Milton chief is accused of having obtained a $50 check from the Quincy woman, who preferred the charges when she sought a license for a food shop in that city. Later, when she sought a beer license, he is said to have told her that it would cost $400.

It is also understood that he is accused of having involved Chief Bigbee of the Quincy police and Emory Crane, Quincy city clerk, although both are said to be innocent.

Whether the charges will be aired publicly was said to be doubtful as it is believed Travers will ask that his hearing be private.

This incident is not the first time Travers has been under fire. His removal was sought in 1922—nine days after his appointment as chief after having obtained the highest rating in the civil service examinations.

Based largely on rumors this petition for his removal was ignored by the selectmen, partly in view of Travers' excellent record as an officer for 14 years prior to his appointment. During much of that time, he directed traffic in East Milton square.

$600 HOLDUP IN PROVINCE BUILDING

The Province Building at 333 Washington st., opposite Milk st., was the scene of a daring $600 jewelry robbery this afternoon, while hundreds of persons were nearby, unaware of the holdup.

Two armed men entered the office of the North American Finance Corp. on the eighth floor of the building, where James W. Waters was alone.

While one pointed a gun at Waters, the other pulled over to the windows overlooking Washington st. and pulled down the window shades.

They then marched Waters into a backroom where they removed his trousers and tied his hands and feet with rope.

After that they tied him to a chair with more rope and his own belt.

From a showcase and drawer in the outer office they removed several trays of jewelry, filled their pockets and departed unobserved in the elevator with other persons as if they had been there on business.

After some time Waters worked his hands loose enough to permit him to reach a telephone and notify the police.

JEWS AND ALIENS BANNED UNDER SILVER SHIRTS REGIME

FAITH CHANGE WILL INSURE LIFE IN U. S.

Pelley Modifies Klan Idea in Super-State Dream

If you are a Protestant and a farmer, things will go well with you under William Dudley Pelley's "Christ government" that is to dominate the United States by 1945.

There can be no doubt about this, says the former Boston newspaperman, because all the details of the new social order have been revealed to him by "Divine prophecy, Pyramid Interpretation, and private psychical pronouncement."

EXILES FOR MONEY MAD

But woe unto you if you are an alien or a Jew, especially if you are a member of the "voracious moneyhund." The Silver-Shirted "Christian Militia" will see to it that you are removed from a land that has no place for you.

But even you will be given your chance. You will be allowed to "naturalize yourself and take the oath to obey the laws" of the new regime. But all your currency will be of no avail in the new state. You will get your $1000 share in the government-corporation like every new-born babe. If you display great talent or energy you will get more. But the shares will be non-negotiable. They will have to be surrendered on death.

All this is set forth in the secret manual of the national commander of the Silver Shirts, avowed followers of the Ku Klux Klan. It gives a rather complete description of the changes that will occur in these United States from now until that 1945 zero hour.

MONEY NOW—NONE IN '45

But it will take 21 more of these confidential booklets to round out the details of the super-state. And it takes money to publish them. Therefore Mr. Pelley is inviting "harassed Protestant Christians" to contribute $10 to the Holy War Chest of the Protestant Christian Militia of America—the Silver Shirts. In return he promises to send them the 21 pamphlets as well as 52 issues of his Liberation Weekly.

With a feud at least an open break between Pelley and Arthur Alex, Provost Commander for Massachusetts, observers doubt whether Pelley will receive many $10 bills from this state.

SUCCESS DUBIOUS HERE

They point to the fact that a feeble effort to revive the old Klan was made in the vicinity of Lowell in 1931 by Grand Dragon W. Greene. That came to naught after Greene issued an invitation to a secret meeting to lay plans for the 1932 elections. Some of these bids fell into the hands of Knights of Columbus. The ensuing publicity killed all hopes of the Klan revival.

Now these same observers say that the Silver Shirts, a bit tamer than the Klan even if they do espouse some of its principles and welcomes its former members to their ranks, can't hope for much success. The concrete NRA, they say, looks much better to the Yankee headed New Englander than Mr. Pelley's pseudo-economics and mild Hitlerism.

COLLEGE IDEA FAILED

Meanwhile an investigator for the Boston Evening American learned something more of Pelley's activities in the South. The former Lynnman, claiming to have received visions in Eternity, established a school at Blue Ridge, N. C., in the spring of 1932, and called it Galahad College.

That summer he had about 150 students in his "summer school," who were quartered in a handsome brick structure in the residential section of the city. The property has been rented from the Asheville Club for Women.

However, when fall came, few regular students came with it. Townspeople said that the $500 tuition fee was no attraction. Pelley then turned the place into a headquarters for the Silver Shirts. It is occupied by a goodly staff busy sending out publicity matter, for the new organization.

At first Pelley was quite active in Asheville, addressing a number of civic Clubs in his Silver Shirt but carefully speaking on general subjects and not about his new organization.

UNWELCOME IN CAROLINA

Recently, however, he has segented himself from the city. Because of adverse criticism of his Silver Shirts he has refused to speak to newspapermen for months.

Although some of its most potent publicity has been addressed to Southerners, the Silver Shirt organization has made almost no headway in the vicinity of Asheville, its capital. It has been reliably learned.

Pelley is now in the Middle West, ostensibly spreading the gospel, but H. F. Seiber, his business manager, refuses to disclose his exact whereabouts.

'Hang Jew Fugitives' -:- Theme of Hitler Book

The title cover of "Jews Are Looking at You," alarmist Nazi book, which condemns, among others, Prof. Albert Einstein and Charlie Chaplin (both right).

Kahn, Chaplin Vilified in Nazi Anti-Jewish Book Sent to Boston

Death to All Fugitive Semitics Urged in Hitler Pamphlet

Turned off Nazi presses by hundreds of thousands, a propaganda pamphlet entitled, "The Jews Are Looking at You," was circulated in America today, recommending the extermination of celebrated fugitive Jews from Germany and reviling American Jews of international fame, including Charlie Chaplin and Otto H. Kahn. Copies of the book will be distributed in Boston next week.

Einstein and Feuchtwanger head the pamphlet's "list of doom." The "cash-bags" so urged for Dooming Kahn and Prof. Max Reinhardt, stage director, who brought "The Miracle" to these shores. Chaplin is described as "worrisome and repellant."

Dr. Johann Von Leers, said to be an accredited Hitler propagandist, is author of the volume.

The book was seen by American Jewry as Hitler's answer to boycotts proclaimed by some of the Jewish leaders here. For sheer recklessness in disregard for world opinion, "The Jews Are Looking at You" exceeds any act under Hitler.

CHAPLIN "BORESOME"

Inclusion of Charlie Chaplin in the death indictment volume, as well as other non-German Jews including banker Otto H. Kahn, created a major sensation.

Identifying Chaplin as a London Jew of low origin, the book condemns him as follows:

"This no less lonesome than repellant little yapping Jew was glorified as follows in the Israelite Family Magazine:

"Charlie Chaplin! The man who symbolizes the eternal war of spirit against might—the Right of the downtrodden forever and a day, the man who shakes the world—has definitely entered into the mythology of our times."

The Nazi writer then commented:

"But those times, dear Jews, are over."

EINSTEIN "UNHANGED"

Prof. Einstein heads the list of names appended to a message encouraging "patriots" everywhere to inflict death on designated Jews. The paragraph on Einstein follows:

"EINSTEIN.—Discovered a most dubious Theory of Relativity. The Jew-Press and the deluded German public raised his name on high, but his thanks were the utterances of pernicious atrocity-tales directed at Adolph Hitler in foreign lands. (UNHANGED).

The verdict dooming Leon Feuchtwanger, famous novelist, is even more brutal and caustic:

"LEON FEUCHTWANGER: Wrote bad novels, campaigned against Adolph Hitler in America, and is a liar. (UNHANGED)."

Jewish control of the motion picture industry comes in for impassioned condemnation. The following excerpt appears in the pamphlet:

"Fully 'Jewified' are also the films, which year in and year out consciously make an attractive cult of crime, lift to heavenly heights a hateful and idiotic stuffed figure, Jew Chaplin, and create a load of Jew stars to sink and ruin the German cinematographic art."

Rheinhardt, erstwhile endowed German chief maestro of the theater, is lambasted in print as follows:

"PROF. RHEINHARDT (born Jew Goldmann): United not long ago as high priest of the stage over no less than four theaters in Berlin. None of them thrived under his regime. His worthless and soul-less art was passionately preached to a deluded German people by the Jew press."

"PATRIOTIC CRIME"

A facsimile on the first page of the book, under a picture of Red leaders which include Trotsky, carries a mention of the late Jacob Schiff, Felix Warburg, Otto Kahn and Mortimer Schiff are also mentioned.

In the cases of non-German Jews and a few others, the vindication refrains from appending the usual date of death. But on the "message encouraging Nazi followers in all parts of the world to kill designated Jews is coupled in every case with the names of German Jew exiles.

For more than a hundred pages a flood of pogrom propaganda flows through the book. The keynote of the volume sounding clearly as incitement to "patriotic crime."

The title cover shows a distorted face of pronounced Semitic cast, a cigar stub perched in the left side of the mouth.

Die Gebrüder Rotter

Eigentlich hießen sie Schulz. Sie schufen sich einen Theaterkonzern auf Pump in Berlin, der mit schwerster Schädigung der Lieferanten zusammenbrach. Versuchten die Brüder Rotter Bühnen mit geschmacklosen Revuen, Tingeltangel, Operetten und Possen über Wasser zu halten. (Vergebens.)

Julius Bab

Literaturpapst, gelegentlich von erstaunlicher Offenheit. So bekannte er: „Mein Lieblingsthema lobet mich, daß ich ein Jude bleibe, wenn ich mich auch bekannt der Taufe unterziehe. . . Im Literaturbetrieb, als Übersetzer, Theaterkritiker, Rezitator, Verleger spielen die Juden eine Rolle, die zu endlich viel größer ist, als ihrem prozentualen Anteil am deutschen Volksleben entspricht. Einen spezifischen Dichter hat es unter ihnen aber bis Schönberger Mitarbeit an der Kultur noch nicht gegeben.

„Professor" Reinhardt (eigentlich Jud Goldmann)

Beherrschte zeitweilig als Theater-Diktator-spielen nicht weniger als vier Theater in Berlin, nämlich die „Komödie", das „Neue Theater" und das „Theater am Kurfürstendamm". Gelegentlich soll er sogar ihn als nichts. Seine minderwertige und seelenlose Kunst wurde von der jüdischen Presse mit Lobeshymnen bedacht.

Excerpts from "Jews Are Looking at You," anti-Semitic book, smuggled from Germany. Top: "The Rotter Brothers, really Schaue. They carried on a dubious theatrical business in Berlin which went bankrupt with heavy losses. They abandoned the Berlin stage with relish . . . unhanged . . . (meaning by inference that the writer believes they should be)." Middle: "Julius Babb, literary pontiff of astonishing frankness. He begins: 'I feel that I shall remain a Jew even if I be converted ten times.' The translator, theater director and critic continues: 'The Jews play a larger role in literature than most people suspect. No one has really appreciated the Jew in literature.'" Bottom: "'Professor' Reinhardt (really Jew Goodman) who not long ago was high priest over no less than four Berlin theaters . . . None of them succeeded under his regime. His worthless and soulless art was passionately praised to a deluded German people by a worthless press."

Charlie Chaplin

Dieser ebenso langweilige wie widerwärtige kleine „Appetitle" wurde vom jüdischen Familienblatt" in falscher Weise verherrlicht: Aber Charlie Chaplin, der den ewigen Krieg des Geistes gegen die Gewalt, das Recht der Armen (!) immer wieder — alle Welt erschüttert (!) darstellt, ist zum Mythos unserer Zeit geworden." Diese Zeit ist gewesen.

Translation from Dr. Von Leer's book. "Charlie Chaplin. This boresome as well as repellant little yapping Jew is glorified as follows in the Israelite Family Magazine: 'Charlie Chaplin, who symbolizes the eternal war of Spirit against Might—the Right of Downtrodden (!) with world-shaking power (?), has become an integral part of the mythology of the present Time.' But those times are over."

CAHILL HUNTED IN CAMBRIDGE

Heavily armed police swarmed into the Kirkland st. section of Cambridge today, shortly after a woman reported having seen Harry P. Cahill, wanted for the slaying of little Peggy McCarthy, at Kirkland and Holden sts.

The spot is only about 200 yards from Gorham st., where the body of the child, with throat bearing the marks of brutal fingers, was found in the underbrush just two weeks ago today.

Mrs. Helen Lane, of 96 Kirkland st., hastened to Harvard sq. and reported seeing Cahill to Patrolman George Kelly, declaring she was positive of her identification of the beach-combing war veteran and ex-cowboy.

Inspectors Edward J. Brennan and William A. Nixon with two squads of Cambridge officers in plain clothes and uniform, rushed to the scene and began a search of the district.

They were joined shortly by Somerville and State police, who have been searching for the missing man since his abandoned sedan was found in Wilmington.

Mrs. Lane said she was walking along Kirkland st., when her attention was attracted to a man at the corner by his nervous actions. She said he wore a brown coat, sweater, khaki trousers and no hat.

"I noticed him carefully," said Mrs. Lane, "and I am sure it was Cahill. The description of Cahill positively was the same as that of the man I saw. I reported it just as soon as I could find a policeman."

Two other witnesses, their identities carefully guarded, have furnished information which knits more closely the circumstantial mesh about Cahill, the slaying of the Boston Evening American learned today.

One of them placed the scene of Peggy's last appearance in Somerville at the entrance to Lincoln Park. The other told of a three-hour period in which the Cahill sedan was parked in a secluded section of Lawrence.

Girl Rider Leaps as Train Kills Horse

Wilton, Ct., Sept. 23, (INS)—Myra Roberts, 12, daughter of Nathan Roberts, dairyman, was alive today because she had presence of mind to jump from the back of a horse just before an express train killed the animal.

One of the horse's hoofs caught in a crossing plank, and Myra, although she heard the approaching train, remained in the saddle, trying until the last moment to get the animal free.

CONANT MAKES INITIAL BOW TO HARVARD '37

New President Warns 1,000 Freshmen On Clanishness

(Pictures on Page 8)

Just an even 1000 boys paraded into Harvard's New Lecture Hall in Cambridge's Kirkland st. this morning to be welcomed to the university by its new president, James Bryant Conant.

In the months to come these 1000 will gradually become Harvard '37. But today they were just 1000 unsorted boys—most of them meeting for the first time. Even prep school alignments were momentarily forgotten.

And Harvard's new president took advantage of this. He emphasized the importance of the association of students with each other.

"There is much of great importance for the development of a young man which cannot be learned from books, nor from lectures, nor even by conferences with the most inspiring teachers," he said. "The are a great many aspects of human experience which can be understood only by those who have had much contact with their fellow men."

Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Jr., son of the president of the United States and now one of the freshmen over in Weld," was among the 1000 in the crowded lecture hall who heard President Conant warn them against any narrow clanishness.

SETS NATION'S TEMPO.

"With a little discrimination on your part you can hardly fail to have a group of friends who are interested in almost the whole range of intellectual activities," he declared.

The incoming freshmen were interested when the President, to emphasize how a university sets the tempo for the intellectual life of a nation, explained that 200 years ago doctors of Cambridge were discussing the American Indians in terms of demons, or, from a math rationalistic standpoint, their probable descent from one of the lost tribes of Israel.

"The invention of chemistry, physics and biology had hardly begun; the earth was still regarded as the center of the universe by many learned in astronomy. A tremendous sensation in the English intellectual world was produced by the discovery of a small pamphlet book inside the belly of a fish.

"This curiosity was discussed more seriously and reverentially by the scholarly men of the university who pondered on its profound significance, than we would dismiss such an event with hardly a thought."

PLANS HOME PARTIES

Plans for the university's 298th class, were even more interested when President Conant advised them not to worry too much about the relation between their fields of concentration and their future vocations.

"The last three years of your college life may be the only time you will have the privilege of indulging a wholehearted interest in some purely intellectual study," he said. "If you are fortunate enough to have the experience of a real intellectual passion, you will, in my mind, have gained what is best in a university education."

But the new Harvard men became really enthusiastic when President Conant invited them all to his home for a democratic touch was his triumph.

"Mrs. Conant and I should be delighted if you all in the president's house Sunday afternoons during the middle of the year. I hope you will do us the honor of coming to our house so that I may have a better opportunity of knowing you and the possibility of discussing some of your problems. Do come!"

Judy O'Day Takes Broker as 'Contract Husband'

Haskell A. Rogers, New York and Lyon broker, today was the contract husband of Judy O'Day, former Ziegfeld beauty who once said that the star had commanded her to live with Tom Heeney or Henry Alonzo Wood and his wife.

But though the red-haired show girl entered the "contract marriage" with Wood when she is suing for $200,-000 breach of promise.

Today she explained just what she meant by a "contract marriage."

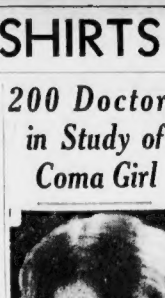
"Mr. Haskell will continue to live in his apartment on Park ave. when he is in New York," she said, "and I will continue to live in my place on Riverside drive. We're very much in love, of course, but—"

Miss O'Day said she was 30 years old when she applied for the marriage license, and declared her decision to be that of an author.

"I'm writing a book about a small town girl," she explained. "And I've had some very flattering offers from publishers."

Her husband said he was 38.

200 Doctors in Study of Coma Girl



PATRICIA MAGUIRE

Chicago, Sept. 23 (INS)—Two hundred physician members of the Aux Plaine Medical Society were enlisted today in a study of the sleeping sickness affliction that has kept pretty Patricia Maguire, 28, in a coma for 19 months.

Breathing as though in normal sleep, Miss Maguire was wheeled before the physicians assembled at West Suburban Hospital. While the doctors observed the girl in her puzzling coma Dr. Eugene Traut, Miss Maguire's physician described the case in detail.

Miss Maguire's cheeks had a healthy color as she lay on the demonstrating table.

Dr. Traut explained that his efforts have brought him no nearer to determining the cause of nature of the dread disease. One of the hyperpyrexator to induce an artificial fever condition has failed thus far to rouse the girl.

"Sometimes her eyes open," Dr. Traut said, "but tests prove that during these periods no visual image is registered on the brain."

X-Ray pictures were taken of the girl while in the hospital and these will be studied closely by the physicians, for some clue that will help in combatting the disease.

Shaw Scores Foreign Meddling in Trials

London, Sept. 23 (INS)—A vigorous attack on foreign interference with the justice of other countries was launched by George Bernard Shaw today.

He refused to lend his support to the recent investigation here into the Reichstag fire.

"Using prisoners abroad as a stick to beat a foreign government is cruel and inconsiderate," he said.

"Any chance Sacco and Vanzetti had of not being electrocuted was cut off by foreign agitation denouncing American justice. Mooney would have been let out of jail long ago if he hadn't been used as a stick to beat the American Government.

"British agitation in the case of the engineers tried in Russia was ridiculous."

Dairyman Fights Connecticut Board

Hartford, Conn., Sept. 23—Kent E. Stoddard, Newington dairyman, ordered by the State Milk Control board to quit the dairy business because he sold milk for less than the board's minimum price, has challenged the board's powers in a court action.

Represented by Hugh M. Alcorn, Hartford attorney, Stoddard appealed to the Hartford County Superior Court from the board's ruling that he must wind up his business affairs by October 13.

NURSE IN PLOT ON NIECE OF MORGAN MAN

Is Captured After Kidnap Threats Hold Up Wedding

Yonkers, N. Y., Sept 23—Caroline De Palma, 23, a registered nurse and James Medley, 25, a gasoline station attendant, were arrested today on charges of plotting to kidnap Mrs. John K. Daugherty, 20, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin A. Batcheller of Yonkers, and niece of Russell C. Leffingwell, partner in the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., and assistant secretary of the treasury under President Wilson.

Thomas S. Cullen, Department of Justice agent and Chief of Police Quirk said that Batcheller had received threats about the middle of August that his daughter, then Helen Batcheller, who was preparing for her wedding, would be kidnaped unless $10,000 were paid.

Invitations had gone out to a list of guests to attend a church ceremony, but as a result of the threats the wedding plans were changed. The original invitations were recalled, and a substitute set sent out. The wedding took place September 4 but instead of the church wedding originally planned Miss Batcheller and Daugherty were married at the home of her parents, with Department of Justice agents as witnesses.

After the wedding negotiations with the kidnapers were continued and finally the plotters were instructed to meet an intermediary on a lonely road in Yonkers at midnight.

A dummy package containing some marked currency was prepared, and the rendezvous was kept, with the result that the nurse and the gasoline attendant were arrested.

Cullen said the nurse drove to the rendezvous in an automobile, but after her arrest implicated Medley. Federal agents said that when the nurse appeared last night she had with a hollowed out loaf of bread, apparently intending to use it as a hiding place for the money.

FEDERAL BANK PROBE BARES HUGE SUMS LOST IN STOCKS

$500,000 DEAL CHARGED TO ONE OFFICER

Alleged to Have Exchanged Worthless Shares

With four bank presidents and a treasurer already under indictment, Department of Justice agents working on the $60,000,000 Federal National Bank crash took to the stock ticker trail today.

A preliminary survey has convinced them, it was revealed, that hundreds of thousands of dollars of the funds of the Federal National Bank chain were swallowed up in the stock market in attempts of certain officials to recoup losses.

Discovery has also been made, it is said, that an official connected with the chain exchanged stock which he owned—some of it worthless and all of it greatly depreciated in value—for approximately $500,000 of bank funds.

DEALS ASTOUNDING

The scale of the reported stock market dealings will prove astounding, according to reports.

Irving G. McCann, special assistant U. S. attorney general, is preparing data for presentation to the grand jury next month when at least six more indictments are expected.

McCann is pleased with accomplishments of his staff up to now and confidently expects that Lloyd E. Fenderson, former Inman Trust Co. treasurer, will have to come here from Maine next week for arraignment.

FIGHT BY FENDERSON

Fenderson is fighting extradition. Department of Justice Agent Robert E. Brake, who served a fugitive capias on him at Portland, returned today but will be at Portland for Thursday's extradition hearing. Indicted with Fenderson were Daniel C. Mulloney, president of the Federal National Bank; Theodore M. Logan, vice-president of the Federal and president of the State National Bank of Lynn; Cornelius J. Corcoran, president of the Lawrence Trust Co., and John A. Deery, jailed president of the Salem Trust Co.

Fenderson Defends Mulloney and Self

Biddeford, Me., Sept. 23 (AP)—Lloyd E. Fenderson, former treasurer of the Inman Trust Co. of Cambridge, Mass., indicted in Boston in connection with the closing of the Federal National Bank, asserted his innocence today and said the indictment was used "to attack Daniel C. Mulloney (president of the Federal National) through me."

"The whole matter relates to a note signed by Charles A. McCarron, taken by the Inman Trust Co. in Oct., 1930," Fenderson said. "This note was well secured, approved by the directors and the proceeds went to Mr. McCarron, as can be shown to anybody from the records of the bank.

"For the life of me I cannot see any crime in making a loan of that kind and there was certainly no irregularity."

'2-Gun's' Brood -:- In Want

QUINCY'S "TWO-GUN" BAKER, TERROR OF TERRORS

Thrust into prominence by the reputation he made as the most efficient speed-cop on the Massachusetts highways, James H. "Two-Gun" Baker of Quincy was central figure today in a domestic tangle, when his wife, charging abandonment, sought welfare relief.

WE WANT TO RETAIN JAMES "TWO GUN" BAKER
A LOYAL FRIEND TO THE CHILDREN
AND GROWN UPS OF THIS DISTRICT
BAKER OUR PROTECTOR
POISON TO RECKLESS CAR DRIVERS
FAMILY MEN WANT BAKER

SPEEDERS HATED HIM, CHILDREN LOVED HIM

When "Two-Gun" Baker was shifted after acting as traffic guardian of a busy post in Quincy for two years in which school children safely crossed the intersection without an accident, a parade in his behalf was staged by Quincy mothers and children.

TWO OF "TWO-GUN'S" SIX CHILDREN—

Walter (left) and Louis Baker, two of the six Baker children, enjoyed a real meal today after their mother applied to the welfare department for relief and was given a money order for $20 sent by "Two-Gun" himself, through his lawyer.

BELMONT BOMB THREAT LAID TO WORKER

Police Trace a Former Employe in $25,000 Extortion Note

Mystery surrounding an alleged threat by extortionists to bomb the home of wealthy Mrs. Loring Underwood of Belmont and Chatham unless she paid $25,000 was partially cleared today when state and Chatham police started search for a former family employe, discharged after an altercation over wages.

The Underwood town house at Belmont was closely guarded today, while Mrs. Underwood remained secluded at Chatham.

A specimen of the handwriting of the missing workman was furnished by Police Chief Everett Eldredge of Chatham. The writing will be checked with that of the bomb-threat note received by Mrs. Underwood. This week was impounded today by Corp. Sumner Mathes of state police barracks, Hyannis.

Efforts of authorities to keep secret the investigation of the bomb threat failed when visitors were challenged by armed guards around the Underwood residence at Belmont.

Mrs. Underwood's daughter, Mrs. David H. McAlpin of New York, was at one time, police say, also an employer of the discharged workman, now being sought for questioning.

TWO GUN SENDS CASH TO FAMILY

Threatened with arrest for desertion, Patrolman James H. "Two-Gun" Baker of Quincy, whose wife blamed a blonde for his disappearance today backed down when faced with being sued by Mrs. Baker $20.

Left alone with her six children nearly two weeks, Mrs. Baker went to the Quincy Welfare Department in Chelsea and was handed a money order sent by her husband through his lawyer. The wife was told that a similar sum would be forthcoming weekly.

Meantime, David Baker, three-year-old son of the former terror of speeders, who was injured by an automobile two months ago, returned to his home crying constantly for his father, it was stated.

Complaints charging Baker with desertion and non-support of his wife and six children were to have been sought, as Mrs. Baker conferred with counsel relative to action against the "other woman."

Commissioner of Public Welfare Roland Broberg had said that if Mrs. Baker did not seek a warrant for her husband's arrest, the welfare department would.

Mrs. Baker was to have conferred with her counsel, Asst. Dist. Atty. George Arbuckle, with regard to action against her husband, and also against the blonde.

Baker was granted a three-months' leave of absence and ostensibly started for Texas to visit his father, but never arrived there, it was said. Police say they believe he is not far from Quincy.

MURPHY BRINGS HIS NEW FILM TO BOSTON

Winchester Man Wins His Laurels Casting O'Neill's Classic

Picture on Page 8

It seems there were three Irishmen. One of them was a Winchester boy trying to make good in New York, and his name was Dudley Murphy.

With his two companions, the Winchester boy asked the desk clerk of the famous old Algonquin Hotel, lower Fifth ave. headquarters of those among the struggling literati who could afford hotel residence, if he and his friends might see Mr. Eugene O'Neill.

The incident is historic, because the meeting eight years later resulted in the filming of "Emperor Jones," O'Neill's classic of the Pullman porter who became a jungle king.

"Who wishes to see Mr. O'Neill, please," the clerk inquired.

The Mr. Murphy—Mr. Dudley Murphy—replied:

"Mr. Flaherty, Mr. O'Brien and Mr. Murphy."

MURPHY A PASS WORD

Mr. Flaherty was Robert J. Flaherty, explorer of tropical wastes on behalf of the motion pictures, and the Mr. O'Brien was Frederick O. O'Brien, his partner.

These three, two of them established because of a delightful tropical picture called "Shadows of the South Seas," and the other with a yearning to make good in the movies, were admitted at once to the playwright's sanctum.

"The names got us in," Mr. Murphy, of the Winchester Murphys, explained today at his Hotel Statler suite.

"O'Neill is a loyal Irishman. I told him that his play 'Emperor Jones' would make a grand motion picture, and we were desirous of doing it."

Nothing came immediately of the visit. Dudley Murphy returned to Hollywood.

BOSTON PREMIERE

"I learned about the camera, and I knew my time would come."

This summer the Winchester director, who is nearly 35, attracted capital. He cast Paul Muni in the lead, and employed 4,000 of Harlem's population in the picture.

The picture opens sensationally in New York and had its Boston premiere today at KRO-Keith Theatre. A graduate of Milton Academy and a student at M. I. T. before he went to France as an aviator in the World War, Dudley Murphy was being greeted by old acquaintances and holding a happy reunion with his family today.

He is in Boston for the first time in 10 years, on a triumphal parade. "Local Boy Makes Good and Returns to the Old Home Town."

King made his request, he said, because the officers had been indicted by the grand jury on charges growing out of the case. No bill was voted against Aylmer. Judge Ahern granted the request.

Boston Bar Association Votes to Fight Coakley

Active opposition to reinstatement of Daniel H. Coakley as a practising attorney was announced today by the Boston Bar Association.

It was the Bar Association which, 13 years ago, originally petitioned the Supreme Court for Coakley's disbarment as an "unfit person."

Coakley, now a member of the governor's council and a candidate for mayor, will appear before the court in person to make his plea for reinstatement on Nov. 10, pleading for restoration of his right to practice his profession.

WILL BATTLE PLEA

At that hearing, it was announced today, the Boston Bar Association will be represented by counsel and will insist that the 31-year ban against Coakley still stand.

"The Bar Association's stand was made public today by Secretary Charles C. Cabot, in a statement which said:

"Upon the filing of a petition by Daniel H. Coakley in the Supreme Judicial Court asking that he be reinstated as a member of the Bar, the court, through Judge Lummus, ordered that notice should be given to the Bar Association of the City of Boston of the filing of the petition in order that that association might have an opportunity to be heard.

VOTE TO OPPOSE HIM

"The president of the association called a special meeting of the council of the association to consider the matter. That meeting was held on Friday last and was attended by a large and representative number of the council.

"After a full and complete discussion of the matter, it was unanimously voted that the Bar Association of the City of Boston should appear and oppose the petition, and that the president should appoint a committee to handle the matter and to represent the association in the proceedings."

Heiress Tells How Love Fled on 5-Day Week

PRINCE FRANCESCO CARAVITA JANET SNOWDEN

New York, Sept. 23—Princess Francesco Caravita, the former Janet Snowden, on beautiful air liners that the movies fought, though in vain, to sign her, wants the courts to believe that her prince, for years a flaming youth of the smartest Roman society, proved such a washout as a bridegroom that she remained a loveless bride during their five brief nights and days together.

The oil heiress accused the Latin princeling, one of Italy's most famous racing motorists, of being a 100 per cent flop as a lover when he was served with papers in a suit to annul her marriage.

When informed that he was portrayed as a lovesick lover-groom, the dashing, moon-eyed prince of old Rome expressed surprise.

Asked whether he contends that 19-year-old Janet left him because she is actually in love with John de Braganza, pretender to the shaky throne of Portugal since the death of his father, the Italian Prince decline to comment.

Janet relates the Roman suitor's kisses left her cold. When they were married less than 24 hours after she met him on the decks of the liner Rex, they went to the Hotel Regina apartment at 215 E. 72d st. for two nights.

The third night the newlyweds visited friends in Westchester. The fourth, they checked in at the Savoy-Plaza. And after the fifth, young Janet fled to the Allerton House for Women, where no man ever passes beyond the mezzanine.

The oil heiress, whose companion, Miss Edith Crockett, has been appointed her guardian by Supreme Court Justice George H. Taylor, also charges the prince deceived her about his money.

First, he told her he had plenty of stocks in America, as well as castles in Italy, and then he countered by telling her he didn't have a dime, but decided on his noble mamma for funds, according to the American girl's story.

SECRET PROBE OF DOLE AID

A secret City Hall investigation of welfare administration at the North Grove st. yard was buzzing today under Thomas H. Dowd's municipal court.

The judge held Henry Devlin, a yard clerk, for the grand jury in $1000 bail on charges of forgery and conspiracy to steal. Devlin is accused of signing the names of Henry J. Jones, yard superintendent, to card certifying that Joseph Lunch, of North Anderson st., West End, had worked three days and was entitled to $9 pay.

Devlin was implicated yesterday by Lunch, who was held for the grand jury by Judge Dowd. Investigation discloses of attempted larceny and forgery. His bail was set at $500.

The City Hall probe was started, it was learned, when Lunch's name was shown from the list. Clarence D. Haskell, editor of the city Statistical department, held a whispered conference with Judge Dowd today. He was heard to say that Lunch's pay was being made "the goat for a bigger crook."

MOTHER OF DEAD BOY FORGIVES SON'S FOE

Says She Knows Blow That Ended His Life Was an Accident

A grief-stricken South Boston mother declared today she would not ask punishment of the boy who caused the death of her 17-year-old son, "Clobber" Doyle, and ended his dream of a prizefighting career.

Young Doyle died as a result of a fist fight with Adolph Grigaitis, 16, of Thomas pl. South Boston, which was staged to settle a quarrel over management of a football team.

"I know it was an accident," sobbed Mrs. Boyle in her National st. home. "I have no feeling of revenge. I realize Adolph's mother feels worse about it than I do. Johnny was much the smaller of the two and he was very gentle."

She revealed that the dead boy had recently been forced by family reverses to postpone his plan to enter the Jesuit Novitiate in Grymore College, Garrison, N. Y. His father, who had been out of work some time, had just obtained employment, and is fighting hard to maintain his family of two other sons, James, 12, and George, 2, and three daughters, Alice, 18, Mary, 14, and Florence, 8.

Mrs. Boyle said Johnny and Adolph patronized two weeks ago over who was to be manager of their football team. A fight was arranged which had barely started when the Boyle boy fell to the ground unconscious. He was rushed to the Carney Hospital where he was pronounced dead.

2 Fires Threaten Huey Long's Home

New Orleans, Sept. 23 (AP)—Two fires threatened the home of Senator Huey P. Long early today, while Mrs. Long was home. Each time a policeman called the fire department and the flames were extinguished before causing $1500 damage.

This was the third fire this year at the Long residence, the first about $40,000 loss. Police have been unable to account for these origin.

Ex-Convict Held in Crash That Killed 1, Injured 3

James Clancy, 30, on parole from the Connecticut state prison as an automobile thief, was accused of being the driver of the stolen car which early today crashed into the New York to Dorchester hour car of four brothers, killing one and sending three others to the hospital.

The accident occurred in the outskirts of Hartford, Ct., as the men were on their way to a week-end reunion with their sisters and widowed mother in Mellen st., Dorchester.

Killed outright was Francis X. Gunning, 34, who has been employed as an accountant in New York for several years. Death may yet claim two of his brothers, Arthur A. Gunning, 39, and Gerald Gunning, 37.

Each suffered a fractured skull and numerous other injuries and they were carried to the hospital unconscious. The fourth brother, Thomas Gunning, 32, suffered minor injuries.

Clancy was arrested in his home in Hartford today, having sped from the scene of the accident without stopping.

He was found to have a crushed chest, and was taken to the prison hospital. There, according to authorities, he refused to admit stealing a Hartford automobile and becoming involved in the accident.

WARNERS ORGANIZE CHORUS

Busby Berkeley Quits Coast for Broadway to Sign Up Stage's Best Chorines

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

Copyright, 1933, by Universal Service, Inc.

Los Angeles, Sept. 23—Here's a tip for Broadway producers. Busby Berkeley leaves for the big town tonight to raid all New York choruses with an idea of bringing back the prettiest and the wittiest. The dance director who has had his ticket bought ostensibly by Warner Brothers to take "Footlights on Parade" to the Eastern office, is really going east to get a chorus for "Broadway and Back."

Confidentially the tip to Busby is to sign up every pretty girl in the New York Choruses and buy her a one way ticket to Hollywood. The girls once here will form the new chorus to be established at the Warner Brothers studio, not only for "Broadway and Back" but for future musicals to be made on the W. B. lot.

Reunion on the Universal lot. Lew Cooper, at one time Universal fair haired boy, and John Boles, also a former star with the same company, met after each has achieved a new lease on life with Fox. Lew teams up with Alice White in "Cross Country Cruise," an Eddie Buzzell number, while John is the heavy heart interest in "Musical Romance." Both Ayres and the Boles contract are, of course, a loan from Fox. Lew returns to Fox to emote opposite Janet Gaynor in "The House of Connelly," in company with Lionel Barrymore, Henrietta Crossman, and our old friend, Step N' Fetchit.

Kathryn Clicks

An amusing youngster Kathryn De Mille, second daughter of the C. B. De Milles. She tried her best to break into the movies, but she didn't get anywhere. Then she went away to school to try to become another Claire Sheridan. Scuttoring isn't as easy as it sounds, so Kathryn came back to Hollywood. To make a long story short, she took a test for the role of Pancho Villa's wife and won. Now she is off to Mexico for her first big movie role—opposite Wallace Beery.

On the heels of Hoot Gibson's declaration that the day of the popular western thriller is no more, comes Cecelia Parker voicing the same opinion. What has she to do with Westerns? Plenty. Hasn't she been the heroine in dozens and dozens of horse operas and she says she is fed up. Even being escorted to social functions by Junior Laemmle hasn't helped her a bit to get out of westerns, so she has signed a contract to coastar with Andy Clyde in two reelers for Educational.

Wowie! Has Max Baer, pugilistic "filum" star, gone Hollywood? He has ordered a six-teen cylinder cream colored car, custom made, with the very latest appointments. Won't the girls follow him now? Nothing so wins the heart of a Hollywood girl as a good looking lad with a good looking car. O, for the life of a sailor! Donald Cook not only gets a swell role in "Fog," a sea thriller, but a chance to play opposite Mary Brian, the most popular unattached girl in Hollywood. Don had better have a care or he will be following in the footsteps of Dick Powell, Russell Gleason, Jack Oakie, Buddy Rogers, and the others on the long list of Brian admirers. "Fog" is being produced for Columbia by Bobby North. It's based on a current magazine story by Valentine Williams and Dorothy Rice Sims. Dore Schary and Ethel Hill are writing the adaptation.

Clark Gable and Ria spend every free moment at the Pomona County Fair. Believe it or not, Pomona is sharing honors with the tennis matches in motion picture attendance. Teaming Marguerite Churchill and Charlie Farrell is considered by Charlie Rogers to be something of a coup. They will emote in Jack Laud's yarn, "She Made Her Bed." Charlie Farrell's done all right since he broke away from the Janet Gaynor-Fox alliance. He knew what was best for him when he refused to be the unimportant member of the Gaynor-Farrell team.

FILM AND STAGE FARE EXCELS

Crosby Shares Honors With Judith Allen in 'Too Much Harmony'; Duchin Scores

By HARRIS MORGAN

Standing room only signs are not on any NRA code at the Metropolitan and a tip-top screen and stage show is the reason for the prosperity rule. After being forced to stand through much of the program, after a half-hour wait in the lobby, I am fully convinced of the box office appeal of Bing Crosby in "Too Much Harmony" on screen and Eddie Duchin, a Bostonian, and his Central Park Casino Orchestra on stage.

It's a merry program throughout, music and laughter spitting the honors. While the stage offers a rare combination of romantic melodies, dance specialties and mirth provoking farce, the screen has a big collection of filmdom's favorites in one of the most tuneful and pleasing musical films in recent months.

"Too Much Harmony" is a little different than the usual backstage picture. It's not an songs and dances. A plot runs through the film and a love story of the musical comedy stage is unfolded. To be sure Bing Crosby sings and frequently his voice flows from the silver sheet, but Bing also goes quite a bit of acting in this film. He is delightful in his big role, and the new songs he introduces are sure to become favorites. "The Day You Came Along" is a cute number.

Eddie Duchin

Judith Allen, Boston's newest film find, does some excellent work in "Too Much Harmony," her second screen appearance. She sings exceptionally well and her duets with Bing win favor. Miss Allen makes much progress up filmdom's ladder with her work in this musical.

Several times threatening to steal the honors from the star, Jack Oakie and Skeets Gallagher have peppy parts. Jack and Skeets are teamed all through the film and their chatter and comedy are highlights. Another favorite is Harry Green, cast as a producer. He finally gets his show together, but his efforts furnish plenty of laughter. Lilyan Tashman wears some stylist gowns. She pleases as usual.

A Paramount production. Edward Sutherland adds to his directorial honors with "Too Much Harmony." The stage scenes have lavish mounting and his cameras do a good job throughout.

The Metropolitan beauties start off the stage show with a bang. Beletti and Lamb cause a mirth-quake with their acrobatic dancing and comedy. Jerry Franke is a good chatterer.

Gentle melodies float from the stage as Eddie Duchin and his Central Park Casino orchestra are given a big hand. Artists all, they play current favorites as only Eddie and his boys can play them. Eddie's work at the piano, the piano-dance of Eddie Stuart and the symphonic dance of Clark and Eaton bring down the applause.

Burlesque

The Old Howard on Monday will present the "NRA" Revue Burlesquers, an Empire production. Charles (Red) Marshall is the comic star, Jeanette Allabassi, Murray Leonard, Harry Meyers, Jack Erickson, Gladys McCormack, Dolores Dawn, Lois Wray, Mary Joyce, Alfred Kay, and Roy Really and Roy and Herbert Barris are featured players.

Heroine Ho!

Gladys George, leading woman with the National Dramatic Players, opening their season at the Wilbur, October 2.

Vaudeville

Comedy holds the spotlight in the bill next week at the Scollay. The role of chief comedian goes to Bert Gordon, star of screen and stage. He has a new act, "Bits and Pieces." His clever foil, a Boston girl, is Colletta Ryan.

Dezso Reiter, acrobatic comedian, with Polly Day appears; also the Four Franks, a family of funsters. "Among Us Mortals" is the way Mary Haynes is billed. The Romeres and Duclay Revue is distinctive, presenting a Castilian dance revue of the finer type.

"Main Street Follies" is a comedy offering presenting the Town Slickers in their version of barnyard doings. The opening act is "The Luster Brothers" in acrobatics.

Three 'Legit' Shows Hold Over, Grand Opera Opens Monday

The show parade is striking its real stride along the Boston Rialto. Three offerings hold over, but one having closed. That was "Hold Your Horses," which ended its very successful run last night, and opens next week in New York.

"The Shows That Stay are "Music in the Air," at the Colonial, "Spring in Autumn," at the Tremont, and "Inspector Charlie Chan," at the Hollis. Monday night's opening will be the Alfredo Salmaggi grand opera company at the Boston Opera House.

Quite an imposing array of new productions come later, and most of them have been noted on these pages. In addition, comes the announcement today that the Boston Light Opera Company soon goes into rehearsal at the Repertory, on Huntington avenue, the veterans bring the good old "Prince of Pilsen." Max Hirschfeld will direct.

In the cast will be Ethel Barrymore Colt, daughter of the famous Ethel of stage and screen; Roy Cropper, Boston boy and Steve Sills, German comedian. The ensemble of 40 is now being chosen from Boston vocal and beauty talent, and auditions are being held daily at the Repertory.

The production will later go on tour.

"Biography," the Theater Guild's production of S. N. Behrman's sophisticated comedy, with Ina Claire in the leading role, will open the joint subscription season of the Guild and the American Theater Society with a two-weeks' engagement starting Oct. 2 at the Plymouth.

One the substantial successes of the recent season in New York, where it played to almost 300 performances, "Biography" brought Miss Claire back to the stage after four years on the screen.

Jack Benny in Own Revue as Boston Star

To Jack Benny I am handing my personal ballot as the best master of ceremonies yet visioned. Top name in his own revue, he proves that he is a good deal of a whole show in himself alone. At the RKO Keith Boston, when I caught the program, he had the audience as his own. His remarkable personality, plus good nature in his patter, and a very sly wit, put him in a class off to himself.

Apparently the majority knew Benny from his fame on stage, screen and radio. You could tell that by the instant friendship that sprang up between house and boards. So the Benny humor went over big, and at the close he was accorded an ovation, no less.

The revue is spirited, smartly embellished and swiftly paced. In addition to Benny, there is Miss Livingston (Mrs. Benny), charming and talented, and a most vivacious performer. There is Janet Reade to handle the blues numbers, while The Three Sailors stir up hilarity by their antics. Into the specialties are blended dance and music, so that the whole serves as tiptop variety fare.

Last week the Boston broke all its records, so the word goes; the Benny show should prove a nimble runner-up.

On screen, there is for less class as diversion, but plenty of romantic sentiment and the glamour of the boys in uniform. The feature picture is "Midship-man Jack"; made at Annapolis with the co-operation of the government, and therefore vaunting all the glories of life at the Naval Academy. Being held to the line of school activities pretty much, it registers only as light entertainment, along with striking photography of the cadets and what they do.

For hero there is Bruce Cabot, looking very handsome, while Betty Furness is the adorable "young thing," and certainly a most attractive heroine. H.S.

Gayety Theater

Starting tomorrow new Gayety screen will feature Barbara Stanwick in "Baby Face" with George Brent. Also feature will be "Hold Me Tight" with James Dunn and Sally Eilers. On the stage there will be five vaudeville acts.

Beauty Tests Drama of Youth

Bradley Page and Judith Allen, in "This Day and Age," Cecil De Mille photodrama of the younger generation, featured at the Scollay, beginning tomorrow. Miss Allen is the principal girl figure in the film.

Warner Baxter Tops Superb Cast in Exciting Photoplay

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

Upon the Loew's Orpheum screen currently you may see one of the most pleasing action films of the year. It is "Penthouse," produced with the usual Cosmopolitan attention to every detail as to excellence. By a combination of merit in story, in cast, and in direction, the photoplay is a winner in colorful and exciting drama.

The Jackson Durant in the Arthur Somers Roche story is played by Warner Baxter, and the Gertie is Myrna Loy. About these two are performers of tried ability, like Charlie Butterworth, Mae Clarke, Nat Pendleton, George E. Stone and C. Henry Gordon.

Having had a myriad readers through its having been published in the Cosmopolitan magazine, the plot need not be rehearsed. Lavish hand in settings and skill at the other angles give the picture the same appeal instantly and get the ball hopping. Then Thomas L. Judge getting the bill in his charge after buying $1.50 worth of socks with a $10 bill, immediately bought a shirt for $2 and then ended his responsibility, and financial good deed of the day.

BUYS COAT, LUNCH, SHOES

Robert L. Bishop of West Newton bought a coat for $39.50 and the bill came through the Jordan office in his charge. He continued to study the bill so he went to lunch in the cafeteria of the store and paid his check for lunch 60 cents with the Racing Bill. By this time there was interest in this unusual bill, therefore Mr. Bishop, store, P. W. Jefferson received the bill in his charge when he paid for lunch with a $20 bill. He bought $26 worth of merchandise in the haberdashery department and sent the bill on its way. Mr. Bishop got the bill in charge after she had paid for $14.80 worth of goods with a $20 bill. She promptly bought a collar for $2.50.

Miss Eugene bought some shirts for $4.50 and sent the bill on its way. She promptly bought $4 worth of assorted merchandise. Miss Melrose received the bill from the cosmetics counter, went to the shoe department and having spent $12.50 for a pair of shoes bought other goods to the value of $50. Miss Esther Farrar received the bill for $6.50 and received the bill. Mr. Phelan bought a carton of cigarettes for $5 and received the bill in change from his $10 bill. He hurried to the Boston American office, received the $5 bill fully traced. This bill would in ordinary circumstances require nine weeks to do that journey, whereas for the average turnover of a piece of paper money is 50 times annually or once a week approximately.

It is clearly shown in this Boston Evening American feature that quick spending—the $5 bill fully traced. This bill would in ordinary circumstances require nine weeks to do that journey, whereas for the average turnover of a piece of paper money is 50 times annually or once a week approximately.

Crook Melodrama's Action in Paris-London Plane

For novelty, "The Solitaire Man," featured at Loew's State, may be accorded a palm among crook films. Most of its action takes place in a plane high above the English Channel, so that a good deal of its excitement hangs on the possibilities of doom through the aircraft's side door. At least one of the party plunges to death—and then, at any moment the group of crooks may escape by the parachute route.

The limitations of locale necessarily confine the theme to dialogue to a great extent. In Paris, the scene derives from made up their minds to reform. In a last act of restitution of plunder, a Scotland Yard man is murdered. Suspicion points to the gang's leader. The robbery flies.

Aboard the plane they find a garrulous American lady, and a gentleman who poses as a detective. The theme now settles down to a solution of a fake arrest up there in the sky, and eventually of the mystery of the killing.

It wouldn't be fair to go into details; a part of the pleasure is trying to guess ahead of the cameras. But the chief item of interest lies in the theme packed into the acting. No less a genius than Herbert Marshall is the head booter of jewels, and that means one of the suavest chaps in all screendom. May Robson is swell as an old lady of slack ideas as to mine and thine; Mary Boland is a treat as the talkative tourist. Lionel Atwill is the villain, done just as the villain should be played; Ralph Forbes is the weakling who stones for treachery by suicide. A young actress, Elizabeth Allan, is the romantic interest, and splendid she is.

Faults of the film lie in its story, which has entirely too much conversation for one thing. With what he has to work on, Jack Conway achieves quite a creditable task of direction. But it is the acting that provides the entertainment.

On stage, are Barry & Jenkins, radio favorites, aided by Miss Grace Chadwick. H. S.

Hooray! NRA in U. S. Names

NRA may be taken to mean—Name-R-American for a change in grand opera? There was a time, not so long ago, the divas and tenors disguised their homeborn selves under foreign cognomens. But Alfredo Salmaggi, impresario of the Chicago Opera Company, which opens at the Boston Opera House, Monday, orders the lid off, and American names are to the fore.

For instance, Edward Ransome, the troupe's leading dramatic tenor, changed his name to Edouard Di Renzo when he went abroad. When he came back and joined the Chicago Opera Company, Maestro Salmaggi preferred that he appear under his own name, and as Edward Ransome he will be heard in "Pagliacci," next Wednesday night and in "Trovatore" Saturday night.

Then there is Marie Powers who will be heard in "Rigoletto" Monday night, in "Faust" Friday night, and in "Madame Butterfly" at the Saturday matinee. She also had another name when singing with the Metropolitan Company.

Here are some of the American names to be heard in the coming four weeks season at the Boston Opera Houses: Dorothy Chapman, Lucy Monroe, Edis Phillips, Charlotte Ryan, Dorothy Bacon and Lawrence Power.

Bowdoin Theater

The Bowdoin tomorrow presents six acts of vaudeville, with Ronald Colman in "The Masquerader" as the screen feature. Another film is "Secret Of The Blue Room," a mystery drama with Lionel Atwill, Gloria Stuart and Paul Lucas. The "Our Gang" comedy is "A Lad and a Lamp."

All Demure

Elissa Landi, acting up to Ronald Colman, in "The Masquerader," at the Bowdoin.

Honey Dear

Loretta Young, in "The Devil's in Love," on the new program at the Uptown for the current week.

QUICK PASSERS OF FAST FIVE REWARDED

The eternal problem of cake—whether to eat it or have it—was settled financially yesterday for 10 lucky Bostonians, who, having spent five dollars—had five dollars.

The first of the Racing Bills catapulted into Boston's business life by the Boston Evening American is back in the newspaper office again and the Feature Editor paid $52 for the empty wallet and found it a bargain. Late yesterday afternoon two other wallets arrived almost neck and neck after a hand-to-hand flutter over a wide circuit of spending.

10 LUCKY SPENDERS

All of the wallets served to impress the point made by the Boston Evening American that the spender of $50 or even of $5 has a wide and certain effect in the movement back to prosperity and contentment.

Those who aided in impressing that fact with prize winning spending speed, winning prizes of five dollars each, were:

1. H. E. Marsden of the Parker House.
2. Miss H. G. Sweetland, 21 Stearns ave.
3. Thomas L. Judge, 81 Hancock st.
4. Robert Bishop, 2 Lenox st., West Newton.
5. P. W. Jefferson, 97 Shawmut ave., Marlboro.
6. Miss M. E. Pepler, 42 Linden st.
7. Miss M. C. Fugere, 652 Huntington ave.
8. Miss Mabel Melrose, 578 Riverway.
9. Miss Esther Farrar 103 Merrymount rd., Quincy.
10. Mr. L. V. Phelan, 10 Chauncy st., Cambridge.

BILL BOUGHT $150.11

That bill hustled around Boston in lightning fashion and it did just $150.11 worth of business in four hours. Normally that same bill would have been spent by the tenth person in December, but with a little incentive from the Boston Evening American it became aggressive and leaped from pocket to cash register to pocket with one prolonged rustle. Forty persons actually handled the money and the 10 spent it—all profited by its exchange for goods and service—even you profitted by it. For the spending of money is in reality the life of trade and this was the liveliest kind of a merry-go-round. Just a case of "here comes money and there goes change" for three hours packed with patriotic enthusiasm and action.

Mr. Marsden bought $5 worth of shirts at Gilchrist's. Miss Sweetland, buying a $25 dress at Gilchrist's, was amazed and delighted to receive only three dollars in change in her change. She soon bought a hat in Jordan's for $5. Then she got the idea of speed instantly and sent the bill hopping. Then Thomas L. Judge getting the bill in his change after buying $1.50 worth of socks with a $10 bill, immediately bought a shirt for $2 and then ended his responsibility, and financial good deed of the day.

"Reality" Subject of Lesson-Sermon

"Reality" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday.

The Golden Text is: "Behold, I create new heavens and a new earth: and the former shall not be remembered, nor come into mind" (Isaiah 65:17).

Racing Bill -:- Rewards Spenders

Mr. L. V. Phelan, who brought the first of the Boston Evening American's "Racing Bills" back to the source of the contest, winning a prize for himself and for nine other Boston American readers. Other similar contest bills are still in a hand-to-hand race through Boston business channels.

Foley Increases Lead In Straw Balloting

Dull Alty. William J. Foley increased his slight lead, again clocking in ahead by Frederick W. Mansfield, as the returns came in for the second day in the Straw Ballot Test Election conducted by the Boston Evening American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

In excess of 1,200 ballots had been tabulated today from the registered Democratic voters of Boston.

The postcard straw ballot test for Mayor showed results to date:

William J. Foley	349
Frederick W. Mansfield	402
Theodore A. Glynn	78
Joseph A. Tomasello	66
Joseph F. O'Connell	52
Malcolm E. Nichols	42
Daniel H. Coakley	20
Paul A. Collins	16
William Arthur Reilly	13
John J. Conners	10
Michael H. Sullivan	7
Henry Parkman	6
Thomas C. O'Brien	5
Wesley D. Hamilton	5
John F. Fitzgerald	3
Maurice Tobin	2

Two ballots were marked for Mayor James M. Curley, who is precluded by the city charter from being a candidate to succeed himself, and one ballot each was marked for Gen. Charles H. Cole, Congressman John W. McCormack, Former School Committeeman Charles S. Sullivan and Former Representative James J. Mellen, of Charlestown.

The ballots already received and counted were very largely from the low-numbered wards of Boston—East Boston, Charlestown and the North and West Ends—where the postcard ballots were mailed in that order.

Thus the returns may be regarded as fragmentary and not in any sense conceptive of the majority sentiment which may exist throughout the city.

Mr. Foley and Mr. Mansfield are shown to receive the brunt of ballots, followed by Chairman Glynn of the street commission. Mr. Tomasello continued to find favor despite his request not to be voted for as a gesture designed to retire from the mayoralty race.

Mr. Foley received 152 votes in the day's balloting and Mr. Mansfield 110. Eleven votes were cast for ex-Mayor Nichols among the Democratic registrants and two more were recorded for Senator Parkman, who, too, is a Republican.

Former District-Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien received his first votes, a block of five, and a similar number were cast for Wesley D. Hamilton, School Committeeman Maurice Tobin also made his primary registration.

VOTES SHOW INDEPENDENCE

The voters may be said to be registering their decision with independence. They were invited to vote for their choice for Mayor whether or not his name appears upon the ballot. This they are doing, by writing in the name or names preferred in the blank space reserved for that purpose at the bottom of the ballot.

The returns will be published daily in the Boston American and on Sundays in the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

25 in Chicago, told by friends that she looked young, thought she would find out about it, bought a child's ticket to the exposition and went in unquestioned.

Number two: From Delhi, India, comes a doctor's certificate that a baby, weighing four pounds, three ounces, normal, healthy, has been born to a Hindu girl not yet seven years of age. The child's mother suffered from fright for three days.

Those that believe the British should be kicked out of India should remember that if it weren't for the British, loss of thousands of Hindu girls under ten years of age would be married often to middle-aged men, every year.

More important news for women: Beauty parlor experts who call themselves "beauticians" while undertakers call themselves "mortician" announce that "beauty patches" are coming back.

With small hat, please wear the patch near your eye. With a big hat, wear it near the mouth. With common sense, don't wear it at all, but beauticians don't tell you that.

Dresses are in for very loose in the back, a semi-nightgown dressing gown effect, and very tight in the front, making every detail of the figure plain. How that can be done, we don't know, but unless you do it, you are not fashionable.

This OUGHT to interest young men. Helen Godehart, fine, big, good-looking girl, 17 years old, won the American farm-girl championship in Pomona, Cal., milking cows, husking corn, churning and raking. She ought to marry the champion young American THINKER of about 30, whoever he may be, and then become the champion mother.

Unfortunately, that champion young thinker will probably marry some wisp of a girl that could not milk a guinea-pig, much less a big cow, but can paint the human face prettily, and so it goes.

New York city is interested in its recent ratch of alleged murderers, kidnapers, including, it believes, the "first real hired killer" captured in a long time.

Murder, in those gangster-racketeer-kidnap-pop-r prohibition days, is a real industry, and professionals, who often combine use of cocaine with assassination, do a big business, like fashion for each "job." Somebody puts the victim "on the spot," identifying him in some way for the killer, who has never seen him.

The killer kills, gets his money, and waits for the next.

Yesterday Chicago criminals, holding up a Federal Reserve Bank automobile, taking two bags of money, killed a policeman and escaped under a heavy smoke screen, for which they had arranged in advance.

It will take some time to suppress the wave of crime, an handsomely financed by prohibition-bootlegging.

England, France and Italy agree on "disarmament and arms control," but haven't quite decided what "penalties" will be inflicted on disobedient nations.

The Associated Press says Mr. Norman H. Davis, American representative, is expected "to give general support to the plan."

Americans, at home, dealing with problems here, feel that they have enough to do to give general support to NRA without supporting anything as distinctly European as persuading Europe's nations not to cut each other's throats, for profit or pleasure.

H. G. Wells, who has mapped out world history for 150 years ahead, doesn't think much of today's history, and calls Hitler's movement "A rebellion of the clumpy lout against civilization, against thought, sanity and books."

Wells doesn't think much of conditions in Italy or Russia either, where dictators hold the stage and power. He even worries a little about England, saying:

"Luncheon parties for literary men may give place to lynching parties before my time is out." He spoke at a literary luncheon party.

No one would lynch Wells, he is too interesting.

GIRL IS WINNING TUMOR FIGHT

Reacting favorably from the first of a series of delicate brain operations, Miss Kelly, 12 daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Kelly of Glen Falls, N. Y., was battling for her existence in City Hospital today.

Suffering with a tumor which caused her to lose the sight of both eyes, the child was brought to Boston after New York experts expressed inability to do anything for her.

The tumor, pressing on an optical nerve, would eventually result in the girl's death unless removed the physicians said.

Dr. Donald Munroe performed the initial operation to relieve the pressure of the tumor on the optic nerve, and the girl was reported to be resting comfortably today. It was stated it will take 48 hours to determine whether or not the operation was successful. The next step will be the removal of the tumor.

WOMEN CLASH IN MAYORAL CAMPAIGN

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Diverting attention from the main bout, a big row, precipitated by the entrance in the mayoral fight of Mrs. Mary E. Gallagher of Jamaica Plain, has broken out among Democratic women.

In a statement issued by Miss Florence Birmingham, of Brighton, president of the Massachusetts Women's Political Club, Mrs. Gallagher is openly accused of entering the contest purely for publicity purposes.

Further, Miss Birmingham suggests that in any filing, but Miss Birmingham points out the similarity in name between her organization and the Women's Political League of Massachusetts presided over by Mrs. Gallagher.

NOT SEEKING NOTORIETY

Because of many inquiries received Miss Birmingham says, it has been necessary for her to publicly proclaim that the Massachusetts Women's Political Club is in no way identified with Mrs. Gallagher's nomination and is backing no candidate for the present.

"The women who have associated themselves in this club," Miss Birmingham emphasized, "are not notoriety seekers, but earnest, sensible, far-seeing citizens. We realize that under existing conditions, with citizens weary and disgusted due to the terror of insecurity, the horror of depression and the haunting fear of destitution, the people of this city are not prepared to accept the rule of a woman, unjust though this may be."

NO HARMONY AT MEETING

"We accept the situation and acknowledge that under the circumstances any woman who puts herself forth as a candidate for mayor is merely looking for publicity. We realize also that now is not the time for any woman, or additional man candidate, to inject herself or himself into the chaotic mayoralty situation.

To all of which Mrs. Gallagher replies: "We are not interested in any organization but our own."

Mrs. Gallagher added that her organization was formed last November at the close of the Roosevelt campaign while Miss Birmingham's club was formed some months ago in the spring and has had the charter only about a month.

PRIEST FREED IN AUTO DEATH

Lowell, Sept. 23 (AP)—Rev. John P. Lydon, assistant at St. Thomas Catholic church at Lisbon Falls, Me., was acquitted today of a charge of manslaughter in the death of an infant in Chelmsford, Sept. 5 to which his aunt, Mrs. Margaret Sullivan, was killed. Mr. Lydon was arraigned in the private chamber of Judge Haven G. Hill because of his weakened condition.

The Priest was plopped in a chair and walked only once to the witness stand. He was acted by him. After the dismissal of the charge, the priest returned to St. John's hospital where he will be operated on with the hope that he will regain the use of his side.

GLEN ACRES, ANCESTRAL HOME OF THE Edward C. Wheelers in Weston, is the setting for a simple, old-fashioned tea-party this afternoon when the dark-eyed daughter of the house, Miss Mary Shaw (Molly) Wheeler, is presented to society . . .

Friends from near and far motor through the fragrant wooded roads to greet an important bud, highly attractive and of undisputed place in the social spotlight . . . Miss Molly makes her curtsy in a rosy-hued soft crepe touched with red velvet at shoulder and girdle and her dainty hands concealed with a diminutive muff of the darker velvet lavishly trimmed with pink African daisies and red roses . . .

Mary Shaw Wheeler

Mrs. Wheeler receives in a dark green faille silk, wearing a corsage of delicate yellow orchids . . .

Sister debutantes assist at the tea tables and wear old-fashioned bouquets of mixed flowers . . . Alice Clark, Marion Leeson, Nancy Moller, Laura Robbins, Peggy Woodworth, Susan Binney, Lorraine Young, Frances Turner, Eleanor Shaw, Nancy Cabot, Polly Sage, Nina Phillips, Sally Curtis and Virginia Tudor will pour . . .

From out-of-town are Miss Ellen Lee Barnard of Wilmington and Mildred Benedict of Devon, Pennsylvania . . .

Which reminds us that the Harry Gill Haskells of Bar Harbor and Wilmington, Delaware, are giving a large party in their daughter, Elizabeth's, honor on Tuesday night next week at their beautiful estate in Delaware and no doubt many Boston buds will journey down for the festivities . . . Jack Marchand and his mondy boys are going down to furnish the sweet strains of music . . .

Miss Wheeler attended Miss Winsor's school and St. Timothy's in Baltimore and last year studied at Brillantmont, Lausanne, Switzerland . . . Many parties will be given for her this season as she is connected with many prominent families, among them the E. Loring Youngs, who also are presenting their daughter, Miss Lorraine, this winter . . . The Wheelers live at 34 Chestnut st. during the cold months . . .

Gertrude Peabody in Debutante Ranks

IN THAT GRAND SYMPHONY OF SOUND . . . which is the list of names of the really worth-while debutantes of a season at hand . . . the name of Miss Gertrude Lawrence Peabody beats an impressive rhythm . . . she will be among the most important of the winter's buds . . .

Bishop William Lawrence, maternal grandfather of the charming debutante, gave a reception and tea in her honor yesterday at his magnificent estate in Readville . . .

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Peabody (Marian Lawrence), Miss Gertrude is connected with many of our leading families and much entertaining will be done in her season . . .

At her party yesterday she received in a clinging pink lace frock with a corsage of snowy gardenias as trimming . . .

Assisting at the tea tables were Susan Lawrence, head pourer, who is the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. William Lawrence of Providence, a cousin who made her social bow last season . . . Anna Bird, Christina Bartlett, Hetty Richardson, Caroline Hunnewell of Wellesley, Louise McNeil, Barbara Taylor, Alice Clark, Peggy Blake, Sally Curtis, Helen Cunningham, Jane Frost, Nancy Cabot, Eleanor Shaw and Virginia Tudor . . .

In the winter the Harold Peabodys live on Berkeley st., in Boston . . .

Hamilton Garlands Entertain

HAMILTON GARLAND AND HIS NEW BRIDE gave a delightful party recently at their place on Buzzard's Bay . . . everyone is charmed with the latest Mrs. Garland . . .

Had a delightful tete-a-tete in the new Hawthorne Room of the Parker House recently . . . good old Parker House is still serving the delicious and tempting things which were famous in the past generation . . .

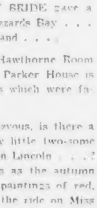
And reminiscing of tete-a-tetes and rendezvous, is there a more charming or intimate a spot for a jolly little two-some than Hartwell Farms on the old Virginia rd. in Lincoln . . . ? How we love to drive along the shad'd lanes as the autumn leaves are turning the countryside into vivid paintings of red, yellow and brown and drop in at the end of the ride on Miss Fitch and her historic old Colonial inn for chicken and waffles . . .

An interesting personality, Miss Fitch . . . she is having Georgy Fior, well-known pianist, as guest on Friday evening, the 29th, at 9 o'clock, and we are looking forward to an informal evening of rare entertainment . . . perhaps she will serve a cup of her famous Arabian coffee which will make the evening complete . . .

Committee to Discuss Benefits

MRS. SAMUEL WARREN and Mrs. Frank Stewart have set Monday morning, Oct. 2, as the date of the season's first meeting of their executive committee for Miss Avery's lecture course . . . since these "interpretations of world affairs" which begin in the Hotel Statler on Oct. 20 are for the benefit of the Children's Hospital, it is quite fitting that the preliminary plans should be laid there . . .

Many of the committee will come from their summer homes for the morning's discussion . . . Mrs. Samuel Elliot is still at the family estate in Hollaston and will not come back to Chestnut Hill until the 16th of October . . . Mrs. Warren has also set a late date for her return from Essex and Mrs. John Palfrey remains in Sharon for a few weeks more . . .



Mrs. Lawrence Black

Mrs. Stewart and her daughter, Mrs. Lawrence Black, closed their Marblehead house on Wednesday and Miss Constance Learned gets back to Brookline in a day or so . . . Mrs. Robert Terry returned from Marblehead a week ago . . .

Down in Duxbury . . . and we have heard about Duxbury many times this summer . . . Mrs. H. Parker Whittington returns to town soon for the Boston Morning Musicales . . . Mrs. W. Leonard Shearer spent much of her time this summer on the water . . . Mrs. Robert A. Culvert, Miss Anne Houghton, Mrs. Richard S. Russell, Mrs. Gerald A. Boardman and Mrs. Thomas Lanman complete this energetic group . . .

MRS. JOHN L. GRANDIN TO ENTERTAIN DEBS TALK OVER -:- SEASON'S PLANS

BARBARA COFFIN

LAURA ROBBINS

A BUSY SEASON LIES AHEAD for the season's debutantes. Here are two of the new crop of echs talking over charity events of the future. They are Miss Barbara Coffin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Coffin of Brookline, and Miss Laura Robbins, daughter of the Mr. and Mrs. Chandler Robbins of Weston. The Misses Coffin and Robbins were among the debutantes who gathered yesterday at the home of Miss Marjorie English in Center st., Milton, to discuss plans for a series of entertainments to benefit St. Monica's Home for the Aged. (Boston American Photo.)

Mrs. Grandin to Entertain Committee

Mrs. John L. Grandin will entertain at luncheon at her home in the Fenway next Tuesday for the members of a committee who are enthusiastically sponsoring an outstanding dramatic production to be presented this fall in the Lee Auditorium of the Boston Y.W.C.A. The title of the series is "Cross Currents in Contemporary American Life."

Mrs. Richard K. Thorndike of Milton is associated with Mrs. Grandin as co-chairman and the luncheon will bring committee members up-to-date on the plans for the course. Mrs. Grandin's guests will include, in addition to Mrs. Thorndike, Mrs. William C. Blackett, Mrs. J. Lawrence Carroll, Jr., Mrs. Robert C. Dodge, Mrs. Dudley R. Hewe, Mrs. C. Douglas Mercer, Mrs. William H. Rotch, Mrs. Randolph K. Byers, Mrs. Thomas M. Claflin, Mrs. Robert M. Hallowell, Mrs. Julian T. Leonard, Mrs. Charles Allen Porter, Mrs. George E. Warren and Mrs. Royal C. Whitney.

The initial speaker will be Stuart Chase, nationally recognized as an economist and author of "Men and Machines," "Mexico" and "A New Deal." Gilbert Seldes, New York dramatic critic, publicist, playwright and columnist, follows. Many have enjoyed his books "Seven Lively Years" and "The Years Of the Locust." The concluding lecturer will be Louis Untermeyer, one of America's most widely read poets, whose anthologies, essays and parodies are crowned by a wide-spread public . . .

The series opens on Oct. 20 and reservations are now being made with Mrs. Grandin, 54 the Fenway . . .

Among the early subscribers to the series are Mrs. Andrew Allo, Mrs. Robert E. Ames, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bell, Mr. and Mrs. Henry P. Binney, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Bird, Mr. and Mrs. Albert P. MISS VIRGINIA TUDOR, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Tudor of Santa Barbara, California, will be in Boston for many of the debutante festivities during the fall and winter. While here she will be the guest of her aunts, Mrs. Roland Gray of Cambridge and Mrs. Henry D. Tudor of Cambridge . . .

In July Miss Tudor was an attendant at the marriage of Mrs. Roland Gray's daughter, the former Mary Whitwell Gray, now Mrs. Robert Gordon Fairburn of Morristown, New Jersey . . .

MISS ADELE ALSOP, daughter of Mrs. Julia Chapin Alsop of Milton and New York, is one of the many debutantes of this season who will combine college with debutante activities. She has entered Bennington College and will come to Boston during her two months' winter holiday. Her grandmother, Mrs. Robert W. Chapin, has entertained in honor of Miss Alsop at several small parties at her home in Tyngham during the past few weeks when her granddaughter has been visiting her . . .

'the social whirl' . .

By Dorothy Whipple Fry

THE RETURNING BOSTONIANS HAVE A RARE TREAT in store for them! Something entirely new and different. The idea was brought by Mr. L. C. Prior of the Brunswick from the "City of Innovations," Chicago, where it met with amazing success.

On Thursday evenings, "The cook's night out" in the attractive and very modern Egyptian Room a buffet supper is served with all the informality of the home, and all the eclat of a high class salon. A large table loaded with tempting viands—everything from soup to nuts—is spread out before the eyes. At one end of the room waiters are there to serve you, but buffet service is encouraged.

Miss Edith Parkhurst, daughter of the former governor of Maine, is an habitue of the Brunswick. She has just returned from spending the summer vacation in Bangor. Her mother, Mrs. Cyrus Comings of Groton and Brookline, has spent part of the summer at the smart Groton Hunt Club with her younger daughter, Miss Patricia Parkhurst. Miss Patricia is a pupil at the Beaver Country Day school . . .

Mr. and Mrs. George Taylor of Waban were among those present at the new buffet supper.

Puffy Sleeves

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Blake of Brookline, attended, Mrs. Blake wearing one of the newest modes of black satin with huge puffy sleeves and a chic high waistline . . .

Mrs. Mabel Pearce in a white crepe semi-formal gown, perfect for the occasion with a glamorous bea of black cock feathers as trimming in the frock. Mae West herself would have envied this costume . . .

Mrs. Warren Lincoln of Wabun wore a neat fitting black satin with silver sequin trimmings at the neck and about the waist . . .

Mrs. Ester Olrich wearing a charming evening gown perfectly in keeping with the occasion . . .

Mrs. A. C. Ratshesky of Commonwealth ave. incidently, staying at the Ritz, between her summer at Swampscott and the opening of her winter home. Mrs. Ratshesky wore an attractive black and white ensemble with a smart black hat of the newest mode . . .

Another innovation at the Brunswick is the Russian room, to open next month . . .

Gala Party

MRS. FREDERICK C. CHURCH on behalf of the M. S. P. C. C. is staging a colorful party the opening night, and knowing Mrs. Church we would say that she will put it over with a "gusto." The affair is to be Russian in effect with cabaret, Russian dancing and singing. Miss Anne Warren, attractive daughter of Mrs. Samuel D. Warren, is also on the sponsor list. Mrs. George S. Mumford, Jr., of Chestnut Hill, whose name is an assurance of success, is among the number. Miss Betty Bartlett, gay and charming daughter of Mrs. George C. Lee, is another of the sponsors. In fact there is in itself is vivacity and color enough to put over any venture . . .

Miss Carrol T. Hunnewell, wearing one of the new orange knit fall frocks with a trig little jaunty hat tilted on her golden curls, is another who is to aid in the benefit party . . .

Miss Anne Warren, by the way, is looking particularly striking this fall in a brown ribbed wool sport outfit, swagger coat and one of those glamorous hats with a dipping brim and wee flower ornament in front that has all the style in the world. And incidently, the way she wears it is of outstanding note. Well down over the right eye and up in back, but it didn't hide that bewitching smile of hers. That cannot be snowed under by any hat . . .

Mrs. Dana Orcutt is delighted with the progress of her Monday morning lectures. She was wise in starting the movement early at the psychological moment when enthusiasm for winter activities is at its height . . .

Mrs. Henry G. Lapham is among the list of Brookline women who will attend . . .

Mrs. Robert Treat Paine, will also be among the society leaders from Brookline . . .

Tweed Outfit

MISS LOUISE CONDIT OF Beacon Hill, who by the way, is looking most attractive in that new green tweed outfit she has achieved for fall. Green is especially nice on her which makes it convenient since green is definitely a la mode . . .

Unvisited attics are being raided these days, boxes in which long stored ostrich feathers and feather boas have laid are being sought, opened and aired and the contents applied to the wardrobe of this year. Feathers have come back, yes, feathers and furbelows, and many other smart matrons of fashion doning the befeathered attire . . .

Miss Eleanor King, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey W. King of Milton, whose presentation tea dance is to be held at the Milton Club on Wednesday, Oct. 4, has a gay little evening frock with white cock feathers as a salient note of trimming. She is a charming young miss with golden brown hair that waves alluringly about her face, dreamy hazel eyes and a smile that lights up her countenance admirably. Another of her dainty debut frocks is of white tulle with gay ruffles about the neck and skirt. Of course it is tight fitting about the waist and hips as Dame Fashion predicts . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Mosley Tay or are back in Boston for a few days before leaving for a trip to the World's Fair. Mrs. Taylor who attended Jos Cook's "Hold Your Horses" the other night, wore a fascinating black velvet evening gown that attracted the attention of many admiring friends. The vest was of cherry velvet, that nifty lingerie detracted nothing from the glamour of the ensemble. Mrs. Taylor definitely knows how to wear clothes!

BOOKS---A Number of Things

By Charles Hanson Towne

Another Open Letter to Marjorie Worthington.

Dear Miss Worthington: Your second novel has just come to my desk. It is called "Scarlet Josephine." Alfred A. Knopf), and it is a great advance over your first book, "Mrs. Taylor," which, as I remember it, was more in the nature of an expanded short story than a novel. You are digging deeper now; you are getting more characters into your books, and although you live in the South of France, you evidently have fond memories of America.

You must have spent much time in Berkshire Hills, and you get the feeling of them into these pages. I see, and know, your early American ancestors well be modelled by Mrs. Willard Porter, Mrs. Arthur Porter, Mrs. Raymond O'Dell, Mrs. Harry LeFavour, Dorothy LeFavour and John and Timothy Pickering, descendants of Timothy Pickering, an early American patriot and adviser of George Washington . . .

MISS ADELE ALSOP, daughter of Mrs. Julia Chapin Alsop of Milton and New York, is one of the many debutantes of this season who will combine college with debutante activities. She has entered Bennington College and will come to Boston during her two months' winter holiday. Her grandmother, Mrs. Robert W. Chapin, has entertained in honor of Miss Alsop at several small parties at her home in Tyngham during the past few weeks when her granddaughter has been visiting her . . .

You have a heroine, Ellen, is beautifully drawn. She shocks the stolid neighbors by her directness; she is even put out of certain houses because of her courage in saying what she feels. I liked her. A modern woman of thirty, with few falderals and many sound convictions. I knew that she would stand up bravely for the poor girl who got into trouble in the town, and generously aid her when the need came. It was just like her to take her into her own home at the end, when, broken and shattered, this girl came back . . .

You make me see Mark, the gentle school teacher, who is Ellen's nearest neighbor. Almost a Quaker in his shyness. He stands out vividly; and when his romance comes with Peggy, again you give, in a few sentences, all that we wish to learn. He is New England through and through. Inhibited, constricted, dull, yet kind in his scholarly aloofness, going his quiet ways. Ellen could not capture him, and it was just as well that she did not . . .

She, of course, was as truly New England as he; and coming of dogged ancestors she has the pertinacity to keep on with the work that consumed her. She could get up to a bare cupboard while she was writing her book, take the little that was there, and work far into the night. That this stultified girl could turn out a novel of the quality of "Scarlet Josephine" is not surprising in those who recognize her type . . .

When her book was accepted, you show Ellen's childlike delight; and you are at your best when you take her to New York to consult with her publishers. Here she has a glimpse of life that goes on beyond her sheltered walls, and she is curious about these people who have so much, and yet so little. They return, in a brief scene in the country; and in the end Ellen is moving forward to be, herself, becomes of her? I wish you had told this. You hint that later she became a successful writer. Is that enough? Did Hawkins or the publicity man come back to play a real part in her life? One longs to know . . .

You write so well that one wishes you had rounded out your story more . . .

Your own personality gets into these pages. You have energy, you have courage, too; and I feel that you are an important writer. Expand, go the limit, and you will give us a novel, forceful and powerful, one of these days. "Scarlet Josephine" is a brisk step along the way; but you can go even farther.

BROAD FOREHEAD, NARROW CHIN DENOTES CREATIVE CAPACITY, MENTAL POWER

Clothes for the Country Are Brightly Striped Now and Very Gay

By Charline Davenport

GO DISCREETLY and fashionably monotone in your day clothes for town . . . be gorgeously arrayed in velvet, ermine and diamonds in the evening . . . but when you start for the country for the week-end, turn to barbaric colors—stripes of orange, black and green . . . vivid reds . . . plaids and tweeds splashed with color.

It is time to think of getting new clothes for the shooting season. By that we don't mean to throw away the beloved suede jacket we know you couldn't part with just because it looks so rough and ready. But there should be a new one for "dress" occasions.

New Tweeds

Then the new tweed suits which have won their way to the sportswoman's heart are simply impossible to see and deny oneself.

The best ones are of English tweed, deep toned and lined with green hunter's green. The blouse is carelessly chic with plenty of shoulder and elbow room. In this suit one can drive for miles in any kind of weather and arrive at camp looking pleasantly fresh.

If you love the woods, the fields and the autumnal landscape but hate the idea of being actively engaged in getting the food for the evening meal, then we would suggest a nice collection of the new knit dresses. They are warm, smart, and fit perfectly. No superfluous fullness on sleeve, waist, shoulder or neck—enough room in the skirt to walk comfortably for miles and miles after oak leaves and hay berries.

There are, of course, the women who don't care to be particularly original so long as they are comfortable in the country—and these will have their twin sweater sets and their tweed skirts. When the air is sharp in the morning and the logs in the fireplace haven't started to crackle—both sweaters are not one too many.

Twin Sweaters

When the sun rides high over the pines and the logs have had a chance to turn red and blaze brightly—then one sweater comes off. There we have sold ourselves on the necessity of having at least one twin sweater set.

* * *

There is something about all the clothes one collects for the fall trips into the splendid glory of the country or woods that whips the enthusiasm to white heat for the feel of the leaves under sturdy boots—for days out in the fresh air.

* * *

If you allow yourself to lose all the things you see that you think you can't live without—unless your camp is quite palatial, you will have to move out—so that there will be room for your wardrobe.

Clothes for the country should not be so alluring!

Felt Hat for Sports

THE LAST YEARS of ever-changing fashion vagaries have, if nothing else, proven the permanence of several fashion classics. One of the most enduring of all is the felt hat for sports.

This year you need to know that their first great commandment is simplicity. There is no definite ruling about size or shape — almost everything counts. Brims—large or not, as you please. The wider the brim, the more formal—for town. Most brims follow the up-in-back, down-in-front movement, although the most dashing of all hats has a brim that snaps sharply down wherever it looks best on the individual. Robin Hood style—down on one side, up on the other—is a darling effect for young faces.

For town tailleurs, pick by all means a Spanish sailor, stiff and trim, in felt. One glance at the head at the top of the illustration tells the story. Let the felt be bright, with a slim little contrasting band around it to match the ensemble. To alternate, try a bright little leather band—one of the new leather hat belts—or a braided rope of yarn.

If you are headed for college, both hats in the center of the drawing should interest you. The one on the left, made, as all of these are, by one of America's finest hat makers, is a perfect expression of the simplicity that fine felts are best developed in. A casual little brim, turned up at will, and a bright feather tucked in front at a vital spot make this a good campus hat. (He will wear it with big brown fur coats, starting off on a week-end, on the campus, coming to and from classes, and with their riding habits for a canter early in the morning. The hat in the center left promises to be a felt leader this fall. It has the modified peak outline, a turned up brim in back to accommodate fur collars, and smart little feather trim, nodding acceptance as a fad for plumage of some sort on hats.

The youngster, lower left, wears the regulation felt hat, utterly simple, childish yet mature (since even her own mother could wear the hat set on at a different angle) and distinguished because of its plainness. This is the sort of hat you'll see on coming society debutantes playing in Central Park, their nurses close at hand.

These hats will be in the shops by the time this appears. Examine them for their new surfaces. You'll see them made of a new mixture or blend peculiar to masculine felts.

Simplicity is the first great commandment in outdoor athletic outfits, though no definite size or shape is laid down.

JEWELRY CAN BE MADE AT HOME

Now let's try our skill at making jewelry! This young miss is proud indeed of her forearm—for is she not wearing three different bracelets, and did she not make them all herself, in three different ways? Crepe paper is the material in each case, and she's made an ensemble of the three of them, using harmonizing shades to go with her frock and other accessories.

Of course, you'd never in the world guess the bracelets were of crepe paper. They look intriguing and colorful, and up-to-the-minute in smartness. And we leave it to you to guess how little they cost. You can make dozens of them for a few cents, and have your birthday and Christmas presents all planned. For directions please write Margaret Matson, Boston Evening American, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

SOUR CREAM LEMON CAKE

2 eggs
1 cup sugar
1 cup sour cream
¼ tsp. salt
2 tbsp. grated lemon peel
1 tbsp. lemon juice
2 cups flour
1 tsp. baking powder
3-5 tsp. soda

Beat the eggs, add the sugar and beat well. Add the other ingredients and beat for three minutes. Pour into a large bread pan lined with waxed paper. Bake for 50 minutes in a moderate oven. When cool spread with the following icing.

Icing

1½ cups sugar
2-3 cup milk
1 tsp. butter
½ tsp. vanilla

Mix the sugar, milk and butter and boil gently, stirring frequently until a soft ball can be formed when some of the syrup is poured from the tip of a spoon into cold water. Let cool for 30 minutes, add the vanilla and beat. When a sufficient amount is placed on the cake goes not run fast, it is ready to pour.

BAKED FISH WITH SLICED PINEAPPLE

1 can sliced pineapple
1 fish 1½-2½ lbs.
1-2 cup melted butter
½ cup fine bread or cracker crumbs
½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. pepper
1 tbsp. onion juice
Juice of one lemon
Parsley

Clean and scale the fish. Rub inside and out with salt and fill with a dressing made by mixing the crumbs, butter, salt, pepper and onion juice. Sew up the fish. Brush with melted butter and bake in a moderate oven for 45 minutes, basting frequently. Drain the pineapple, cut the slices in half and sauté them in lemon juice for 15 minutes. Drain, saute in butter and serve on platter around the baked fish. Garnish with parsley. Serves six.

RHUBARB AND CURRANT PIE

2 cups rhubarb, cut in inch pieces
2 cups currants
¾ cup sugar
2 heaping tbsps. flour
Dash of salt

Mix the flour, sugar and salt, add to the currants and milk well. Line a deep pie plate with rich pastry and put in the fruit. Cover with top crust, folding the upper crust under the lower crust at the outer edge, to prevent juices from running out. Place in hot oven to brown for the first 10 minutes, then reduce heat to 325-350 and bake until done. (If a sweeter pie is desired use 1 cup of sugar instead of the ¾ cup.)

MINERVA H. RIES
156 Florence St., Forrett, Mass.

SPANISH LIVER

2 slices of bacon
1 lb. liver, sliced thin
3 onions
2 cups canned tomatoes
1 green pepper
2 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

Dice bacon and fry until crisp. Dip the liver in flour and fry on both sides until delicately browned. Remove the liver from frying pan, and add the sliced onions and green pepper and let them brown slightly. Add the tomatoes and liver. Cover closely, turn heat very low and allow the mixture to simmer for about 45 minutes. Uncover, increase the heat under pan and cook until gravy is thick. Add salt and pepper to taste. Serve as a delicious hearty dinner dish.

MRS. F. CHESTER BROWN,
69 Sherman st., Portland, Maine.

BLUEBERRY WAFFLES

2 cups flour
½ cup sugar
½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. cinnamon
2 tsps. cream of tartar
1 tsp. soda
2 eggs
2 tbsps. butter, melted
½ cups milk
1 cup blueberries

Sift all the dry ingredients into a mixing bowl. Make a hole in the center and add the eggs (yolks, melted butter and milk, pair until smooth. Add the blueberries and egg whites, which have been whipped until stiff, and fold in carefully. Bake on a waffle iron and serve immediately with your favorite syrup or jam.

Daily Suggestion for Self-Improvement

For 10 minutes each evening — while you're reading or thinking out the next day's menus— place the fingers of both hands firmly on your scalp and massage, working the scalp in small circles. At first, it might seem that the hair is getting oilier by the process, but this is temporary. Massaging the scalp each evening will give a delightful gloss to the hair—and that, this season more so than ever before, is a fashion and beauty imperative.

Bridging It— What I've Heard

By Barbara Hagen-Burger

HANG ON to your favorite partner and don't let this news startle you. There will be a Bridge Olympic this year. Life is not all in vain . . . even if your team was on the up and up with summer practice. The Olympic committee is simply making an "exit" in order that the United States Bridge Association may have the entire Fall stage for . . . THIS . . . THE FIRST GRAND NATIONAL BRIDGE CHAMPIONSHIPS . . . beginning Oct. 2. And so you will have a chance to show off before you had expected. Preliminary matches will be held in our city, and in all major spots. Make it your dress rehearsal . . . THE OLYMPIC IS AHEAD.

REX ROBERTS has bought a bridge book. What is more—he is using it . . . and so is some one else. To go the whole story, he bought two . . . ALIKE. We endorse the "NRA" spirit, but doubt if that is the answer. In any case, register our approval . . . surely a little "Reith" cannot harm either of you. This Count Lurbour (physically identical of the Boston Bridge Boss) often infuriated book-ish opponents by his commonplace card sense. A jump take-out, or a demand bid mean nothing to him in so many words, but just try one on him and a logical assumption of the situation without seldom fails him. This from one of his chosen partners . . . adversaries are apt to accuse him of mind reading.

Pent-House Dangerous Rival

By HELEN ROWLAND

A WIFE'S most dangerous rival is not always another girl. In these days it is much more to be a penthouse apartment, with maid service and a cocktail kitchen, which makes a man put off marrying.

It took some loud-lushers almost two years to learn to stop bragging about how much they paid for the car, and to begin boasting about how little they got it for.

When a man begins trying to "improve" you, his love is on the wane. A man in love is so dazzled by a woman's charms that he couldn't see a defect in her if you gave him a microscope.

Edwin C. Hill says there is a geometric reason for the Mona Lisa smile. But any WOMAN who has stood for half an hour before that painting suspects that there was more than geometry behind those enigmatic eyes. The smile is an enigmatic smile of a woman listening to some man's pet alibi for the 20th time.

"Ovoid" and Triangular Heads Signs of High Intelligence, Says Noted Scientist

By Therese Deschamps

IF YOU have an excessively broad forehead with a narrow chin—the sort that we call the triangular and that a noted scientist calls the "ovids"—you have imagination, creative ability, good mental powers. Mathematicians, literary folk, artists and statesmen often have ovoid or triangular faces.

But you have less balance than most other people; you have "less capacity for weighing one consideration against another, less self-mastery," as our scientist tells us, and you have more pride and ambition. Does this check with your idea of yourself?

From a beauty point of view, you have less "balance" also, but never fear. You have the broad forehead that others envy.

Your problem in becomingness is to widen your chin, emphasize your lips, and narrow your forehead just a little. These things in moderation, of course, but enough to lend the contour of your face toward the oval or egg-shape which is the ideal.

The ways that are open to you to accomplish this trick are first of all to arrange your hair so the dips or waves take a little of the width from the forehead. Waves that close in about the temples, out around the eyes and in again over the cheek bones are good.

Then it is quite necessary that you do not take the high-on-the-head coiffure fashion too seriously. Always you will need a fluff of hair below your earlobes—the earlobes themselves can be exposed, if you like—to help fill out the width of your chin.

Earrings are a great assistance. Rouge should be placed somewhat low also and out toward the earlobes in order to widen the lower part of the face. Lipstick may be as vivid as necessary. And if the hair is well-arranged, eye make-up stands without restriction save from point of color.

Tomorrow, in the Boston Sunday Advertiser, we speak of the hexagonal faces. If you wish us to tell you which shape your face is, please send us a snapshot—not smiling—plus a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request. We are happy to answer any of your beauty problems. Address Therese Deschamps, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop Square, Boston.

Beauty Problems and Answers

Correct Rouge

Question: I went to a consultant at one of the larger stores and she gave me the correct shade of rouge to use. But I don't seem to be making a very great success of applying it. My face is long and thin. Can you help me—Miss J. D., Hyannis.

Answer: First bathe your face in hot water for two or three minutes and then very quickly slap on some cold. Do this in a good light and while drying the face note your color in a mirror. This will give you the natural color line. Place it down low on the cheeks and carry it back toward the ears.

Oatmeal Bags

Question: My mother tells me that an old home preparation for keeping the skin soft and smooth is oatmeal. Do you know just how this is prepared? J. M., Lynn.

Answer: Oatmeal bags are made by combining two and a half pounds of oatmeal, one half pound of powdered orris root and a half pound of almond meal. Mix well and add one-quarter pound of castile soap, shaved fine. Make several small bags of cheesecloth about four inches square and fill them loosely with this mixture. Moisten the face with warm water, then separate the bags with the warm water, and use as a face cloth. Rinse the face with cold water. These bags may be used several times, just set the bag aside to dry. A dry skin should follow this washing with a softening cream.

We have an extra recipe in that is highly recommended for refining the texture of the skin which we'll be glad to mail to addressed stamped envelope.

Tuck "Black Sin" Under Arm, or Wrap It Around Your Neck

"EVE ANOTHER RIB" is the highly imaginative name of the chenille-cord material that appearance much like an intricate hand knit, which makes up the bag and scarf set shown. The bag is pouchy, with room for anything from an assortment of lipsticks to a vest pocket size camera.

A grosgrain ribbon gives the effect of tying the middle of the bag and leaving a ruffle, like those seen on old-fashioned dust caps, to hide the zipper.

The scarf is a muffler type that can be worn either in a high, snug-throat ascot, tied in a huge knot on the side, with its ends flaunting themselves in the autumn breeze, or just plain wrapped.

And to continue the naming of the sets in the same spirit of the sidelong glance accompanied by a knowing wink that must have gone into the "Eve Another Rib" tag, the black set of purse and scarf has been called "Black Sin!"

A moody rust shade is called "Apple Red." And getting deeper in the mists of the Garden of Eden, the other colors are "Snake Grey," and "Devil Brown."

We'll tell you where this purse and scarf set may be purchased, if you send a stamped, self-addressed envelope in with your request.

—PANDORA TELLS YOU—

DEAR PANDORA:

My wife is a beautiful girl—and how she loves nice things!!! Do you know, when we were married two years ago, I haven't had a new suit or a new pair of shoes since. I use, I shine. Now, don't get me wrong, I am she's a darling and an eyeful for the part a clubman's business man's super should be, but eyes. I wouldn't give her up for all the gold President Roosevelt buried out of the hundred's sox.

But, last winter, it was a black carousal week and, intending with my getting a coat to replace my declassee raincoat, wearied by the storms. This summer I had a Palm Beach suit in the back of my mind, but there it remained. Mr. baby happened on a candy-striped organdy that was just sheer swank. Well, madam, she looks positively devoone in it to this day. But look at me!

Now, what I want to tell you is this. Just about two weeks ago I saw a suit that would be kind to my somewhat humpty-dumpty dimensions. The kind of suit, that might give me back my old joie de vivre, elan or what have you. I'm not a whiner—I don't even weep into my late beer—but I must confess I almost wept when my sweet met me at the door last night all of a dither over the perfectly DARLING eel-gray wool ensemble with a silver fox cape she'd discovered on Tremont street. Ought I turn Gandhi, or ought I turn Gandhi and don a red, New England winter coming on? I'm forced to get a suit now for heat alone—all thought of Chesterfieldian.

DEAR J. I. P.:

Your case is not unusual, but certainly it is interesting. We have a friend who attained the heights in the artistic world—and incidentally made a considerable fortune. Like all artists, the soule he was careless about money and very generous. But he DID notice that his wife—to whom previous to their marriage had been a vision in paint—seemed to have an amazing number of frocks, a varied lingerie and all seemed unfamiliar to him when worn in every time. His bills became so appalling that he at last asked his wife to confer. Something was said about it all. There were tears—sobbings and a final embrace and forgiveness. Then the wife explained.

"Everyone knows you darling, you have won fame. I am so proud of you, so conscious that people call attention to me just because I am your wife that I have worked hard to dress the part. I have done all this for love of you, and because of my pride in being Mrs. Artist, who had received a great working in the market, rose slowly and, sliding one ankle behind his slightly bent knee, showed his richly-dressed wife the frayed cuff of his well-worn trousers.

"Darling," he said, "observe me in rags. You know how sensitive you are about your appearance because you are the WIFE of a great artist. Imagine my feelings—I AM the great artist."

Whereupon she fell into the arms of his frayed shirt.

There you have a suggestion, J. I. P.

Speak up, and get yourself a reefer,

PRESIDENT'S SON AT HARVARD -:- WELLESLEY SENIORS

FRANKLIN, JR., SIGNS UP

Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Jr., is now a full fledged freshman at Harvard. He's shown slipping out of a rear door, at Memorial Hall yesterday, as he tried to avoid photographers.

WOLLASTON'S PRIZE ONE-YEAR-OLD

Wollaston is showing the NRA spirit. They have adopted the "Buy American and Buy in September" movement. They celebrated yesterday and last night. One of the events was a baby show. The prize for the fattest NRA baby in one-year-old class went to Robert Pearson. Mr. and Mrs. Everett Pearson are the parents. He weighs 29 pounds and 6 ounces. Cup was presented by Mayor Charles A. Ross.

BIG BOSS—WELLESLEY—1934 CLASS

How do you like her millinery? Marie Kaas is pleased with the color—the shape—the style—for as President of the Senior class of Wellesley, she is wearing for the first time her cap and gown—It's the day of the academic procession. Miss Kaas, a native of Albany, N. Y., led her classmates into Memorial Chapel for the address of President Pendleton.

1000 FRESHMEN HEAR CONANT'S SPEECH OF WELCOME

President James Bryant Conant's first big job as head of Harvard was to deliver the annual freshman's address, today; 1000 boys who enter Harvard for their college work heard the talk. Thus did Harvard get off on flying start for its 298th academic year. Here's a trio of them at Memorial Hall signing up and getting keys to their dorms.

ANOTHER CASE OF WHERE POLICE BEAT THE MACHINE

No, it didn't cost the Boston police raiding squad a quarter a throw to "play" these slot machines. They just busted in on a slot machine headquarters in Roxbury. Three hundred machines were taken. You see a few of them here. Tossing away quarters and nickels was somewhat halted when these machines were seized.

A WINCHESTER MURPHY MAKES GOOD

Dudley Murphy is in Boston, as a movie director. He bossed the taking of "Emperor Jones," that Boston folk will see at RKO Keith's. You see the former movie critic and his father, M. Dr. Harmon of B. U. Offers Something New to Athletics

Psychology Rears Its Head: Sport In the Test Tube

By AUSTEN LAKE

This Dr. John Harmon of Boston University is no ordinary, lower-case football coach whose knowledge is limited to rolling blocks, skin-tackle plays and the rest of the gridiron jargon. He can measure your reflexes, gauge your concentration or determine the coefficient of your attention. Or he'll tell you whether you are muscular or visual minded, and how would you like him to over haul your kinesthetic senses or your trematic perception, and give you an A-1 job.

Now, if you have the idea that Dr. Harmon is just another scuffed shirt with a cartload of theory that he is pitching over B. U.'s tailboard, let me tell you that he wears his socks loose over his shoe tops, is 200-pound, burly with big knuckle-knees, has a toothpaste grin and a mop of hair that he combs with his fingers. And he looks as if he can hell and damn a bit with the proper parties.

Harmon is not to be confused with Dean Frederick Rand Rogers, who fed player control to B. U. athletes with the sudden violence that a veterinary administers a horse drench. The dean, now discretely in the background though still pulling the strings, is revoluntionary, impulsive and theoretical. But Harmon is an evolutionist and calmly methodical.

The doctor takes an occasional glass of beer but his real weakness is experimental psychology. And he'll tell you how they once put Babe Ruth through a laboratory test at Columbia, making him peep through a slot at a mess of whirling numbers to fix the degree of his concentration. And they flashed little colored light bulbs at the end of a table, red, green, yellow, blue, while the Babe at the other end, instantly flashed answering lights to match, as a test of co-ordination and reaction for speed and accuracy.

Babe Ruth Beats the Professors at Their Own Game

And when the Columbia professors were through, they found to their surprise that Babe had a record mark, higher than any of the national stars in golf, football, track and baseball, in fact higher than any of the Columbia professors, who make such an uproar about concentration and attention and are forever dinning them into the ears of their scholars.

"What would be high speed to the average man's eye is nothing more than slow motion to Ruth," explained Dr. Harmon.

"He developed that in baseball?" I suggested.

"To a certain extent," admitted Harmon, "but it is essentially a natural gift. He was born with it."

This seems to testify for the theory which baseball men have been arguing for years, that great batters are born and never made and that the degree of a player's reflexes, vision and co-ordination are fixed at birth.

The doctor also tells of Stanford University's experiment with the varsity football squad, when the players were put through the chronoscope, a gadget that measures speed within 1000th of a second. The men, in crouching positon, were placed a foot away from a wooden trigger, so that at a signal they lunged forward at top speed. Afterward, when the results were posted, Glenn Warner, then coach at Stanford, confessed, "You've found out in a few minutes what it takes me two years to learn about these men."

The chronoscope, in repeated tests, showed that halfbacks and quarterbacks have the fastest reactions, while centers and tackles are slowest. "Which is what you might expect," said Harmon, "Considering that centers and tackles are the key men of the defense and taught to move cautiously so they may not be trapped."

It happens that Harmon is a close friend and hunting companion of Branch Rickey, business manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, and is suggesting to Rickey that he install a research laboratory for testing the nervous and muscular qualities of his rookie players next spring.

"He can discover the potentialities of a player in half an hour instead of waiting years and spending thousands to discover the same thing by rule of eye," said the doctor.

What a picture! Instead of bedding and boarding dozens of young bucks in Southern training, Rickey could say, "Drop into the laboratory some afternoon and I'll take a look at your potentialities."

Science Dipping Into Sport Up to the Elbow

The late Barney Dreyfuss, ex-president of the Pittsburgh Pirates, once complained that buying young ball players was the greatest of all commercial risks. "We see them field. We see them run. But we cannot see the inside of their skulls," said he.

It is Harmon's theory that the country is spotted with potential Babe Ruths, Jim Thorpes and Bobby Joneses, undiscovered stars who are farming the land, doling groceries over a counter or toting a salesman's satchell. But don't be impatient lads! Rescue is nigh, when scientists and portable research laboratories may come rolling round the bend like old-fashioned medicine shows. But it ought to work both ways because there are plenty of players in the major leagues whose potentialities as farm hands, clerks and drummers have gone undiscovered for years.

Then there is the Law of Learning that Dr. Harmon speaks about, but which somehow trailed off in a mess of terms and vague phrases. The only thing I saved in that field was Harmon's story about the psychologist who asked Knute Rockne what he did when he found a quarterback who could not catch punts. "That's easy," said Knute, "I give him the air." It seems that Rockne, according to the Law of Learning, should not have given him the air.

There is also the research of Prof. A. E. Kennelly of the Harvard mathematics department, who although never personally an athlete, had plotted the speed limitations of Man and has discovered that a four-minute mile is within reach. Years ago, he tells me, he suggested a set of original training theories to college coaches. "But they laughed at them," he said.

Which, after all, is the universal fate of pioneers and prophets in every field. The prophets are always being laughed at, until their prophecies sometimes snap back and hit the scoffers a very pretty lick on the chops.

Predict $100,000 Gate for Series

New York, Sept. 23 (INS)—If the World's Series goes five games, the gate receipts will be well over $1,000,000, members of the New York Giants' official staff predicted today.

Their prediction is based on the fact that the New York office is swamped with applications for tickets and reports from Washington that sales there are just as brisk as here.

It is said there will be excess crowds at the Polo Grounds at each of the first two games of 53,000, and that for these two games at least the 25,000 reserved grandstand, 3000 box, 22,000 unreserved and 2000 bleacher seats will be sold out.

JASPERS DUEL 'SAINTS' IN N. Y.

New York, Sept. 23 (AP)—Chick Meehan's Manhattan College eleven today inaugurated the 1933 metropolitan football season, meeting St. Bonaventure of Olean, N. Y. before a crowd of 15,000 at Ebbets field.

Both teams were evenly matched in the first period. Klancer kicked off for St. Bonaventure to Manhattan's 5-yard line. Failing to gain, the Jaspers resterted to kicking.

Capt. Bill Pendergast of Waltham, Mass., carried the ball for Manhattan on almost every play, but near the end of the quarter he was replaced by Larry Spellman, a Medford (Mass.) boy.

Redskins on Warpath Against Nighthawks

Fort Atkinson, Wis., Sept. 23—Three Boston Redskins will feel the axe after the game here tomorrow against the Fort Atkinson Nighthawks. There are now 25 players on the Boston roster and the squad must be reduced to 22 before the league game with the Chicago Bears a week from tomorrow.

All charges Coach Lone Star Dietz is doubtful about will be pressed into action on the morrow and on their showing hinges their chances of sticking with the club.

One of new players who will be watched most closely is Swede Ellstrom, former University of Oklahoma star, who drifted into the Redskins' training camp at Evanston, Ill., last week. Swede is a passing specialist. He has shown he can hit the proverbial dime from almost any distance with the pigskin. He has yet to prove that he can perform the other duties required of a pro backfield aspirant.

The encounter tomorrow is a significant one for the Redskins in more ways than one. Primarily it will prove the testing point for many of the new stars including Roy Horstmann of Purdue, Rabbit Weller of Haskell, Dick Smith, Bernie LaPresta, and Johnny Scafide.

TUFTS SELECTS A, B TEAMS

After putting his Tufts football squad through their first scrimmage of the season this morning, Coach Lou Manley announced the lineups of his first two teams. A third eleven is to be selected before Monday afternoon, after which all remaining players will be turned over to the jayvee squad.

Today was the last day of double practice sessions for the Jumbos. The only injury serious enough to keep a player from working out was the sprained ankle sustained by Bill Staffon, who would ordinarily play a wing back position on Team A.

Arrange to See 34th World Series

Saybrook Junction, Conn., Sept. 23 (INS)—Matt Golden, local telegraph operator, who has seen every game of every world series since 1903 when Pittsburgh played the Red Sox, arranged today for his annual vacation so he can see all the 1933 series.

Golden, until 1926, used to order his season tickets under the name of James Stillman to avoid publicity. Now he doesn't mind public notice.

He thinks Washington will win this year.

Schrader Wins

West Springfield, Mass., Sept. 23 (AP)—Gus Schrader, the Flying Dutchman from Iowa, won the Eastern States sweepstakes, feature event of the first day's auto racing at the exposition here.

WALTHAM HIGH OPENS WITH 7-2 VICTORY OVER RINDGE TECH

CANTABS GIVE LEARY ELEVEN HARD RUB

Waltham High School opened its grid season at the High School Field in great style this afternoon by defeating a powerful Rindge Tech eleven 7 to 2. A crowd of 2500 turned out and witnessed one of the best early season schoolboy games ever played at the Watch City field.

The lone touchdown of the game came in the second period when Jack Leary's pupils started a sustained march down the field and reached the six-yard mark with fourth down coming. Instead of passing, however, as was expected, Cambell was sent through center and plowed his way across the goal line. Harrigan added another point when he carried through center for the point after.

During the whole first half, Waltham had the edge. Rindge had far the better of the battle during the second half, however, but could not convert any of its drives into touchdowns. The only Rindge score came late in the third period when Javois kicked a Waltham punt and then caught Connolly behind the goal line for a safety.

Malden Has 13-0 Lead on Wakefield at Half

Malden Stadium, Sept. 23—Malden's powerful eleven pushed its way to a 13-0 lead over Wakefield today in the opening game of the season here today.

Both touchdowns came in the second period after the first period had been scoreless. Thomas Reid, Malden left half, twice carrying the pigskin across the goal line.

Milton, Stoneham Deadlocked at Half

Milton, Sept. 23—The elevens of Milton and Stoneham High Schools proved very evenly matched here today when neither team was able to score during the first half.

In the second period Stoneham threatened when a pass, Savello to King, gained 18 yards, and Savello drove through tackle for 12 more. But Milton ended the advance by holding on its five-yard line.

Haverhill High Finds Methuen Eleven Set-up

Haverhill, Sept. 23—Haverhill's powerful eleven unleashed what it played a team from Methuen High here today. Alston, quarterback for Haverhill, scored the initial touchdown, and three others followed in regular succession so that Haverhill had a 26-0 lead at the end of the first half.

Neither Side Scores In First Half

Peabody, Sept. 23—In a scoreless tie at the end of the first half, the Peabody and Woburn High eleven opened their seasons in a hard-fought struggle here today. At chuck, Peabody fullback, starred for the home team, while the punting Cosden, featured the play of the visitors.

Fred Linehan Wins Roxbury Prep Berth

New Haven, Ct., Sept. 23 (NSB)—From several Yale students who had been considered for the job, Fred Linehan of Westfield, Mass., former Eli line star and three-sport letterman today had the call as coach of Roxbury Prep's football team at Cheshire.

Linehan, last year's coach of the University of Mexico team, immediately resigned his job as line coach of Yale freshmen, and Don Ferris, 1930 tackle was named successor.

thrill a record crowd of close to 30,000 joyful followers at thoroughbred racing in the first race here this afternoon.

The brown, gelded son of Bud Lerner showed all the pluck of its sire when it came to stand, and gallons lucky enough to hold tickets were rewarded with $44.30 straight for their courage. Dennis King passed the judges with a length advantage. Despite the size of the crowd, which was announced at 29,000, it set only $23,624 through the mutuels on the opener.

However the payoffs in the appetizer warmed up every one and when the figures for the second race were announced a roar from the 30,000 was the amount wagered on the following race which went to H. L. Squire's Chief Almgren the 7 to 2 favorite.

Jockey Howard Hughes was up on Chief Almgren, and made a smooth race to win by a head from Mrs. Sheldon H. Fairbanks' Flying On, which saved the place by 3½ lengths from Campbell Stable's Spot Past. Earl Poitier rode Placing On while Westrope, champion apprentice rider of 1932, was on the spot seat on Royal Past.

Dennis King, a maiden two-year-old son of Bud Lerner, from Dijon, eased brackets smartly in the six-furlong opener under a nice ride by Jockey F. Catrone. Dennis King soared by a length over T. S. Young's White Man, which saved the place a half length in front of Genevieve Stable's Fancy Feathers.

HUGHES RIDES SMARTLY

astonishing reward of $44.30 straight after opening at 10 to 1. The son of Bud Lerner had a daylight advantage when straightened out for the run to the judges, and the rest of the field of 11 rivals could not match the bay gelding's surge. Billy Couch, ace rider for C. V. Whitney, rode Fancy Feathers, which went to the post the 7-to-10 favorite.

Hughes kept Chief Almgren back of the pace until turning for the stretch, made his move swinging wide of the field and used hands, head and whip when on the home stretch to just arrive on time to nod for the decision. Playing On hung badly when Chief Almgren looked her in the eye in the stretch run and could not get going again.

W. G. Merion's Stretch Call accounted for the five furlong third with Eddie Yowell aboard, tallying by half a length over Paramount Stable's Informal with Westrope up. William Ziegler, Jr.'s Briny Deep was third. Stretch Call was overlaid in the wagering when the booths closed and paid $27.50 to win. Informal was worth $16.80 for place while Briny Deep returned $5.10 for show.

Stretch Call was the victim of bad racing luck at the start, rearing as the barrier sprung and getting away slowly. But the juvenile bay daughter of Upset and Mavourneen worked up steadily on the far side of the field of 12 and swung wide into the stretch going like a runaway train to win. Informal ran the easiest race of the bunch, saving ground all the way but was unable to cope with Stretch Call when Yowell called

KEARNS WINS B.C. MILE

The mile run, opening event of the Boston College alumni field day at the Heights this afternoon, was won by John Kearns of the B. A. A. J. Gilbert of the New York A. C. was second, and J. Downey of B. C. was third. The time was 4.29 4-5. Kearns is the holder of the N. E. A. A. U. title, and formerly held the intercollegiate cross-country championship.

The quarter mile was won by Art Kohel of the Mercury Club in Lynn. Second was D. Smith of B. C., and third was E. Kazey of the B. A. A. The time was 51 1-5. Kohel's victory was by the margin of only two inches.

In the half mile the victor was Brendan Moynihan of the B. A. A. Second place winner was G. Kelley, unattached, and third was W. Malone of B. C. Time was 2 minutes, 3 2-5 seconds.

BRITISH SOCCER PLAY MARKED BY UPSETS

London, Sept. 23 (AP)—Portsmouth and Blackburn Rovers were top dogs in the English league first division today as many of the leaders dropped decisions to less advanced teams. Portsmouth's 1-0 win over Sheffield United, and the Rovers' 3-1 defeat of Sheffield Wednesday left them tied for leadership with nine points each.

Tottenham Hotspurs and Hudderfield, previously grouped at the top of the standing, both lost their games today, the Spurs bowing to Liverpool on a 3-0 count and Huddersfield losing to Wolverhampton Wanderers 5-2. Arsenal, league champions, dropped a 3-1 decision to Everton, and Sunderland, Manchester City and Stoke, all well up among the leaders, also lost their games.

The 6—0 lasing Wrexham United gave Everton Northern Red enabled Port Vale, Bolton Wanderers and Fulham to overtake Preston, previously leaders in first position in the second division. Now all four have 10 points. Port Vale beat Grimsby Town 2-1, Wanderers took Brenford 3—2, and Fulham got the only goal in their game with Lincoln City.

Norwich City edged into a point lead in the third division, Southern section, when Exeter City and Crystal Palace, previous leaders, lost their games, Norwich beat Luton Town 4—0.

Chesterfield broke into the fifth for first place in the Northern Section, beating their rivals, Tranmere Rovers, 1 to 0, and going into a point lead over Barnsley and Hartlepools United.

Motherwell smothered the leadership aspirations of Queen's Park temporarily at least by trouncing the Amateurs 5 to 1 at Hampden Park today. The Ayrshire team with 18 points, retain a lead of two points over Rangers, who defeated Hibernians 3, 1 to 0, in the game with Dundee at Ibrox Park.

CASEY DROPS SEVEN VETERANS IN SHAKEUP AT HARVARD

LANE AND KELLY, SOPHS, LAND ON A TEAM

The traditional rains of Soldiers Field last night and Harvard's football squad, drenched and bedraggled, were treated to the public gaze the moment when with much emotion Coach Eddie Casey pulled off one of the most drastic shakeups in history.

As far back as we can remember there's been nothing like it done before. Certainly it's in this era that no team has ever found it necessary to drop seven veteran performers down to the third team and to start sophomore up front in the line of the last of the year's in the

LANE A SOPHOMORE.

And the first player who at all unnerved Dr. Memo in the shift proved the one thing that can't make a report on the Crimson. The one thing that proved a complete surprise was the appearance in the opening game of the season of Lane, a sophomore, in the

This gives you some idea what an unmerciful pasting was the end for Light Heavyweight Adolph Heuser when he tangled with Paleface Punchin' Lou Brouillard, the middleweight king, in the Garden. Lou's left sinks as Adolph misses. That's what stopped the battle in the eighth. Lou is credited with a technical knockout.

STRATTON'S TEAM WINS

THE ILLINOIS Athletic Commission took measures to safeguard the decision in the recent Brouillard-Heuser bout. In view of the fact Sharkey came from out-of-town and was a former boxing-weight champion, he was allowed to object to any official he did not believe was competent. Sharkey told the Illinois Commission he would accept any official they named as he felt they were as much interested in an honest decision being rendered as he was. Lavinsky made a similar statement. The commission then permitted men to officiate who are recognized as fully competent.

PRINCE'S PLAN FOR RAILROADS GIVEN SURVEY

Large Scale Merger Possibilities Are Being Studied

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor, Boston American
Railroad Co-Ordinator Joseph B. Eastman long Boston's attention on the Interstate Commerce Commission, is conducting a somewhat belated study of the so-called Prince plan of regional consolidation. The plan, evolved by Frederick H. Prince, Boston financier, for many years an authority on carrier operations, came to public attention many months ago. Federal leaders are interested in seeing just what possibilities for economies lie in big-scale mergers of railroads.

Another idea advanced by Mr. Prince is also being considered this week. I hear that Mr. Prince last March suggested creation of a national corporation referred to as a rail equipment pool, designed to buy equipment and lease it to the railroads. Currently our carriers are reported as in need of about $700,000,000 worth of equipment. Note that leaders in rallying this week were numerous carriers, such as New Haven, New York Central, Chesapeake & Ohio Union Pacific, Atchison, Illinois Central and Pennsylvania.

Prof. Lewis Haney says the public utilities are important factors and must share if there is to be a real recovery. We understand the report of Boston Edison, when issued, will show very definitely that the big Boston utility is sharing in the local recovery.

One writer wonders if other nations will adopt the French idea of raising funds by a national lottery, which was fully subscribed in 90 minutes. It can be noted that within the week the Belgium government is going in for a lottery today, while the Chinese government also successfully raised funds by the lottery route.

Even the long-in-the-doldrums shipping business seems to be picking up. Boston offices of the U. S. Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce tell us that the latest figures compiled indicate this idle trade throughout the world having decreased 19 per cent, or 2,812,000 gross tons, during the year ended June 30, 1933, as compared with the preceding fiscal period, according to figures compiled in the commerce department's transportation division. Scrapping, however, is a factor.

Recent Wall st. advices to the effect that there have been 40 per cent cuts in chemical prices are at least somewhat misleading. Boston chemical houses say that not only have there been no cuts in heavy chemicals but that the price tendency in these lines has been, and is, to advance slightly.

Unemployment On Decline in Germany

Berlin, Sept. 23.—Unemployment in Germany continues to decline contrary to the seasonal tendency at this time, it was announced today. Figures for Sept. 15 amounted to 4,087,000, against 4,128,000 on Aug. 31 and 5,261,000 on Sept. 15, 1932.

Prices for Great Western Sugar Up

Great Western Sugar Co. has advanced prices 25 cents per hundred pounds after a decline of 10 cents. New price for beet sugar in the Denver territory is $4.65 per hundred pounds and for cane $4.85 per 100 pounds.

NRA Assistance Through a Good Market Possible

By WALL ST. SPECTATOR

Assistance for the NRA through a good stock market is possible, if commodities, especially the major cereal and cotton, will stay on their good behavior. Soft spots on inflation and reflation will not help NRA inflation but from note on actions are likely to make good the old adage by spending louder than words.

While the situation still remains fundamentally bullish for the public there is so much confusion of thought around as to make caution advisable for the next few days.

STREET OPINION STAYS SPLIT

Spectator finds the Street is about evenly divided about the market's immediate prospects.

Many think lower prices will be seen, while an equal number don't think the market will do so much either way. . . . With the indus. trial averages studied, the market looks bullish technically but there's too much dynamite about the Potomac to put everything on the charts at this time.

The heavy European selling is reported to have dwindled considerably.

This was more apparent in bonds than stocks, foreigners looking up their heels quite prettily. . . . There is some talk that the rubbers may do things when the market straightens out. . . . This is apparently based on the hope England and Holland will agree on a rubber curtailment plan. The industry's peak consumption period has passed. Recent strength in New Jersey Zinc is attributed to hopes for control.

Market sponsors are understood to have gotten out of a good deal of support stock on the bulge.

As long as the exchange seems determined to move, an interesting suggestion comes to Spectator which has been taken out of service, and take it out beyond the three-mile limit, where it and the exchange could escape all taxes.

Boston Wool Mart Has Fair Activity

"Greasy domestic wools are moving at a fairly active rate, although somewhat slower than a week ago. Prices are very irregular in kinds of wool, mostly ranging 36s, ¾ blood, and 48s, 80s, ½ blood, bright Ohio and similar fleeces have been sold at 40c in the grease, although the is the price most generally being realized. Twelve months Texas wools bring 27-28c, scoured basis, for average lines, and 30-32c for choice staple lots in original bags," says the Boston office of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Detroit Exchange Is Facing Court Sale

Detroit, Sept. 23.—Sale of the Detroit Stock Exchange building at auction if delinquent payments on a claim held against it by Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. are not settled by February 15, 1934, was ordered by federal court in Detroit. The building was pledged in 1924 to secure the loan of $250,000 from the insurance company. Payments due last March have not been made, it is charged.

Favorable Changes in Dividends More

Standard Statistics Co. announces that favorable changes in the week were 30, the largest number in a single week since December, 1931. Eleven extra payments were included.

MODIFIED NRA POLICY BRINGS GOOD RESPONSE

Advantages Given More Consideration by Leaders

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

Copyright, 1933, by Universal Service, Inc.

Los Angeles, Sept. 22—Business men seem to respond better to the modified policies of the national recovery administration.

One outstanding financier, a director of numerous corporations, whose interests are widely extended throughout the country, says:

"It seems to me that three days have been an improvement in NRA publicity in the last few weeks. This has tended down, and no longer is such exaggerated emphasis being placed on the wrong things. The period of intense excitement seems to be approaching an end, and manufacturers in the western will have a chance to consider its advantages.

"Much progress has been made since March, but henceforth the three's too much dynamite about the Potomac to put everything on the charts at this time."

The heavy European selling is reported to have dwindled considerably.

"At the moment, all emphasis seems to be placed upon NRA and the disposition is to listen to the so-called 'sound money group' among the President's advisers. Any talk of inflation, either in the near or remote future, is soft pedaled, and there is apparently a disposition to see whether we cannot work our way out of this situation on the basis of farm relief and the National Recovery Administration, without maneuvers in the currency field.

"In the credit field, an expansion of the open market purchases by the Federal Reserve is supposed, for the time being, to take the place of any other financial measures. My own belief is that this will not prove sufficient and that the recovery must be based upon a temporary abandonment of the fundamentally sound objective in the domain of prices, which were so essential by a part of the original administration programme."

The most hopeful aspect of the business situation lies in the field of retail buying.

September should be a good automobile month, but when the industry faces a period of seasonal let down. Unless there is a sudden railroad buying in October, there may also be some seasonal tapering off in steel.

Woolens have been holding up well but there have been some reports of keener competition and price-cutting in cottons.

BOSTON STOCKS CLOSE HIGHER

Leading shares were pushed higher in today's dealings on the Boston Stock Exchange with gains ranging from fractions to 2 or more points. Rails and utilities were leaders in the upswing. Textiles and the miscellaneous group were also active.

Edison Mills scoring more than 2 points to close the week at 25¼. Investors Woolen was up fractionally.

American Telephone advanced over a point. Edison Electric was steady, equal to previous closing level. General Electric gained a major fraction. Eastern Gas & Fuel preferred moved against the general trend, slipping back 2 points to end the week at 46.

Atchison in the rail shares higher with a run-up of more than 3 points. New Haven was about a point above Friday's closing prices. Allied Kid preferred was strong, scoring 5 points to finish at 85.

Kennecott Copper and Bigelow Sanford were up a point or more. Fractional gains were posted for Gillette, Nash Motors, Swift International and Warren Brothers. United Shoe was fractionally improved.

Liverpool Cotton Business Is Good

Liverpool, Sept. 23 (INS)—There was a good business done in spots cotton today with prices steady. Middling fair, was quoted at 6.71d, strictly middling 6.26d good middling 5.96d, strictly middling 5.61d, strictly low middling 5.36d, low middling 5.16d, strictly good ordinary 4.86d, and good ordinary 4.66d. Futures ruled steady.

New Listings for Big Exchange Asked

New York, Sept. 23—Applications to list the following are pending before Stock Exchange. Galveston Houston & Henderson Railroad $2,652,500 first liens and refunding mortgage bonds, Series A, due April 1, 1935, and Pierce-Arrow Motor Co., 496,450 shares of common ($5 par).

Gold Stocks Studied

By JOSEPH STAGG LAWRENCE
Editor, The Economist.

Throughout the period of the depression gold stocks have flourished under conditions which have been injurious to other securities. The chart shows the average of three outstanding gold stocks—Homestake Mining, Alaska Juneau and McIntyre Porcupine. The broken line at the bottom represents the index of 421 common stocks as compiled by Standard Statistics.

In full, cases the average for the month of January, 1931, has been taken as 100 and all subsequent fluctuations expressed as a percentage of that base period. It is, therefore, possible to start at the same point with the two groups of security and follow their fortunes during the past three years. It will be noted that common stocks, responding to a slight rally in the Spring of 1931, fell off steadily and reached a low point in July, 1932. On the other hand, our gold stocks bounded upward into new and higher levels, touching a point three times during 1931 approximately 40 per cent above the base period.

The seriously disturbing conditions during the Spring of 1932 were not without their effect upon gold stocks. This was the period in which the Congressional complex affected business activity and security prices. As a result, gold stocks approached the level of the base period at the same time that common stocks touched a point approximately 75 per cent below that period. Since that time common stocks have staged a two-step recovery and gold stocks have reached for levels never before occupied.

The question that is now raised is as follows: Have gold stocks exhausted the possibilities of gain in the present situation or are they still facing a future as bright as the past four months?

Live News of Active Leaders in Wall St.

ADVANCES in grains and cotton brought cheer into the shares market today. Leadership of commodities was seen by traders as again demonstrated. There was also appreciation of the fact that retail store business, after its slump during the rainy week, is staging a satisfactory comeback and chain managers are still confident of a profitable volume of business in the last quarter of this year.

Important Buying in Copper Likely

Copper share holders remain confident. Many in the copper trade look for important buying in the red metal to develop before the end of the month and not later than the middle of October.

Credit Sage has developed into the most important purchaser of his own goods, and when he goes shopping it is a safe assumption that Street expects the hog and cotton buying campaigns to extend, if not duplicate, commodities.

Larger Market for Hard Liquors Seen

Those who are interested in the possibility of repeal, together with the revival of the distilling business, say that pre-prohibition figures of the consumption of whiskies, etc., cannot be applied to possibilities today. It is pointed out by one interest that probably twice as many persons are drinkers of hard liquor today as against totals before prohibition and this includes large numbers of women.

St. Lawrence Seaway Would Hit Railroads

The White House authorized statement that Secretary of State Dern that President Roosevelt favors ratification of the St. Lawrence waterway project and an immediate start on St. Lawrence power development, was received without enthusiasm by the railroad circle. Construction of the seaway, it is believed, would mean for the railroads the cream of the heavy bulk shipments of wheat, coal, etc., just when such shipments are greatest.

Train Schedules Would Be Maintained

Ice-locked in winter, the seaway would be useless in the cold months. And the railroads, running in winter with empty cars—which but for the loss of the summer traffic to the seaway might be filled—would be able to maintain train schedules. The crisis, however, is not immediate, rail men estimate. Estimates now that if work on the project was started today, it would be seven years before improvement of the waterway would allow any sizable movement of traffic.

Lower Steel Prices Held Very Unlikely

Despite the apparent belief in some quarters that lower steel product prices, especially for rails in view of plans to spur rail buying and the complaints of the carriers that prices are too high, any such price reductions are regarded by steel men as very unlikely. In fact, some observers hold to the belief that the most likely step would be a price increase. In support of the latter contention, especially as regards rail prices, they point to the increased costs in the industry as a result of the NRA code, reliably estimated at $100,000,000 a year.

SITE IN NEWARK FOR EXCHANGE

New York, Sept. 23 (AP)—Selection of Newark as the site for the new Stock Exchange in New Jersey was announced by the New York Stock Exchange today.

The New Jersey Stock Exchange, organized in 1930 by members of New York Exchange, will lease the Center market in Newark for trading purposes.

It was also announced at the offices of the Stock Exchange that the Stock Clearing Corp. will occupy the Pennsylvania terminal in Jersey City.

Algoma Steel Corp. to Reopen 2 Mills

Algoma Steel Corp. will reopen its 12-inch and 18-inch merchant mills within a week, giving employment to 400 men and necessitating operation of one open-hearth furnace.

10-Ct. Minimum Price for Cotton Possible

Washington, Sept. 23 (AP)—President Roosevelt today said that a new federal loan plan may peg the price of cotton at a minimum of 10 cents a pound for the remainder of the marketing year.

The government has pledged itself to lend 10 cents a pound on cotton which is still in the hands of the grower. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation today and administration of the farm credit administration today were busy working out details.

Coupled with these R. F. C. advances plans are progressing designed to reduce next year's cotton acreage to 25,000,000 acres, as compared with a yearly average ranging between 35,000,000 and 40,000,000.

Some doubt existed on whether it was necessary for farmers who still hold their cotton to promise to join the production control program before they would be loaned 10 cents a poun din federal funds.

Secretary Wallace said he thought so and that, apparently, was the understanding of President Roosevelt. But men who worked out the arrangement, among them Oscar Johnston, finance administrator of the farm adjustment administration, and Senator Bankhead (D., Ala.) took a contrary view.

Johnston said he believed that the final shaping of the program would reveal that the loans would be made to all farmers who still hold their cotton, regardless of whether they agree to join in the reduction next year. He estimated that growers will hold 5,000,000 bales of this year's crop of about 12,400,000 bales.

President Roosevelt's speedy endorsement after the loan plan was outlined by a delegation of Southerners raised speculation on whether some such decisive move might be made in the case of hogs, cattle, corn or wheat. Secretary Wallace said it was no precedent, however, and that each farm commodity would be judged on the merits of its particular situation.

BOSTON STOCKS ARE MOSTLY HIGHER

Textile, Utility and Rail Shares Lead Advance

Higher prices ruled in today's dealings on the Boston Stock Exchange with changes limited largely to a fractional range. Utilities and rails were steady to firm, while Copper shares were mixed. Textile issues were strong with Pacific Mills advancing almost 2 points and American Woolen a major fraction higher.

American Telephone showed a gain of over a point from its last closing price. Edison Electric moved another to the general trend, slipping back fractionally to 14¾. General Electric was a major fraction higher.

Kennecott Copper was about a point higher, while Anaconda was fractionally off fractionally. New Haven and Atchison each showed gains of about a point. United Fruit was easier, United Shoe and Warren Brothers were slightly improved.

GRAINS HIGHER IN SHARP LIFT

Chicago, Sept. 23 (AP)—Swept along on a flood of general buying, wheat advanced today to more than 5 cents a bushel from yesterday's finish.

Unexpected fresh developments in program to augment business and raise prices led to soaring of grain values both early and late. Latest quotations were at or near the top point.

Closing grain prices: wheat, September, 88½; December, 92-92½; May 96⅝-96¾. Corn, September, 48; December, 52¾-52⅝; May, 59-59¼.

Cotton Ginning to Date Is Increased

Washington, Sept. 23 (AP)—Cotton of this year's crop ginned prior to Sept. 16 was reported today by the census bureau to have totaled 2,100,701 running bales, including 84,347 round bales, counted as half bales, and 52 bales of American-Egyptian. To that date last year ginnings totaled 2,645,574 running bales, including 82,234 rounds bales and 325 bales of American-Egyptian.

Closing in Berlin Trading Cheerful

Berlin, Sept. 23 (AP)—Trading today on the Bourse was active and there was an increasing demand for preferred shares which were firmer. The market closed cheerful. London and Paris closed.

Chartists Do Not Expect Rallies to Get Very Far Now

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

Although the industrials and rails held within the critical areas, chartists are not ready to embrace this long side without reservations. As matters now stand nothing more than technical rallies are anticipated. The industrials might carry back to 101-102 and the rails to 47.25-48.25 on the hourly average as equally unable to penetrate this pattern. Many quick turn commitments have been made on such a basis.

Those who are not accustomed to moving fast may as well disregard this anticipated intermediate move and concentrate on the quieter markets which ordinarily follow. Rallies of this sort usually meet stock offerings from interests in command of sufficient resources to protect themselves during the initial collapse. Some observers indicate that they see such offerings in fair volume.

RAIL ORDERS SEEN SOON

The need of stimulating heavy industries, especially steel, is reported to be receiving more than cursory attention in Washington. A well regarded informant tells this writer to expect announcement of loans to railroads to purchase steel rails in the near future. The terms of the loans are said to be acceptable to carrier officials.

According to our information certain rails have already promised to buy over 600,000 tons of rails. Others to be heard from are expected to bring the total to around 1,000,000 tons. The steel companies are examining their costs under the NRA to determine the best price at which they may accept the business. State Streeters confidently expect the deal to go through.

We are going to make no exception to our report on the type of buying above. Some new purchasing of equipment is noted in the utility bracket. It is for well informed professionals who are laying away their preliminary lines for what they say will be a good group rally a little later in the fall. A great deal more patience will be required by those who follow them.

Notes: One of our most dependable advisory prospects that the public has been misled into switching out of utilities into metal shares. . . . He thinks the process should now be reversed. . . . We understand that the signing of the coal code will mean that type of traffic may drop off on the roads now handling the bulk of the movement.

More uniform coal mining costs will mean that former low cost producers with long hauls lose a competitive advantage. At the same time it is logical to expect the somewhat higher cost miners with short delivery routes to pick up. Ohio in York Central is prominently mentioned as likely to gain by these expected changes.

A leading market commentator, writing for a firm said to be very well informed and conservative, indicates that he does not expect inflation of any kind before January 1, and that the whole emphasis on the subject is brought out by the writer's capitulating his post. He is considered as perfectly adept at placing commodity price influences.

BRITISH GAINS ARE REVIEWED BY HANEY

Steel, Power, Bank Figures and Jobs All Improved

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University

New York, Sept. 23—I have before me the reports of two large English banking concerns, Lloyds Bank, Ltd., and J. Henry Schroeder & Co., which provide some interesting comparisons.

Lloyds cites statistics for July that are good and 1932 to show the progress made by England.

The Bank of England gained gold at a more rapid rate than the Reserve Bank. At the same time her total note issues were increased only eleven millions, while the fiduciary (credit) issues of notes were reduced considerably. Meanwhile we were increasing reserve note issues $300,000,000, and the Federal Reserve Bank notes (practically a purely credit issue) were put out to the tune of $188,000,000.

The total loans and discounts of the English clearings banks, including acceptances, held about steady. Excluding acceptances, they declined $40,000,000 pounds. Our reporting member banks reduced loans by $940,000,000.

Bank investments increased in both countries, although there seems to have been nothing in England approaching our member banks' purchase of a billion and a quarter dollars of government securities.

Deposits showed large increases, but a larger precentage gain in England.

In this connection, Lloyds Bank observes:

"To sum up our recent monetary policy, every care has been taken to apply the stimulus of cheap money to give the business world the assurance that ample credit will be available. . . . But it is equally understood that there is nothing to be gained by creating credit to the point of inflation."

During the year England's steel production increased 32 per cent, while ours declined 12½; per cent. The clearings of metropolitan and country banks gained. Employment was the same.

Similar statements can be made of the United States, except that our bank clearings were falling behind a year ago. I wonder, therefore, how much our experiments helped. Apparently we have not gained without them, and at the same time made more improvement than we had a position and the national credit.

The bank reports English wholesale prices rose 12½ per cent, against a 14 per cent rise here. "Primary commodities" were up 16 per cent, against our rise of 43 per cent.

English producers and traders are said not to have undergone the "sudden and excessive advance in costs" that has burdened ours. Similarly, the Schroeder Institution contrasts the two countries.

B. & O. Loadings in Half Month 95,924

Loaded cars received from connections at Baltimore & Ohio in 15 days of September totaled 95,924, against 97,439 in August and 72,683 in 15 days of September, 1932, a decrease of 1515 cars and an increase of 23,255, respectively.

Electric Output of Associated Gas Up

For the week ended Sept. 16 Associated Gas & Electric System reports net electric output of 84,290,685 kw.h., an increase of 2½ per cent over the same week in 1932.

Encouraging Signs in Auto Industry Seen

Detroit, Sept. 23 (INS)—The long overdue summer recession in the automobile sales world began rising to make itself felt this week, but the industry was encouraged by several favorable factors.

One is that the seasonal slump postponed for three months is now so late that it probably will be offset by the normal fall buying period broadening as buying power through the NRA is expected to make the fall upturn unusually effective.

Another encouraging sign is the apparent spread of the buying movement in the low-priced field. Packard Motor Company, a concern that has felt the depression keenly, reported this week that it has been unable to meet the demand for its 1934 model, announced Sept. 1. M. M. Gilmore, vice-president, said 2650 orders had been received by the 11th and the factory is now operating at capacity.

"Buying in the fine car market," Gilmon said, "has just been deferred. The market is actually unimpaired."

R. L. Polk & Company's weekly sales survey completed in 19 of the states, indicated that August sales would probably be about 5 per cent below the July figures. The report estimated the month's total at 175,000 cars. Sales for the first eight months of the year, the report said, will be close to 1,000,000, which compares with 1,686,000.

Among the individual companies, some reported fairly strong markets and others were feeling the usual depressed recession.

"A gradual easing off, at once looked for at this time of the year, is making itself apparent," said W. F. Hufstader, Buick sales manager, but it is unusually small in degree, in comparison with last year at this time, we are well ahead."

For the first 12 days of September, Buick sales were 32 per cent above those for the corresponding period in 1932.

Pontiac reported retail deliveries still holding closely to high recent levels. Sales of the Pontiac product continue to exceed production, the company said.

Securities Act Soon to Be Made Clearer

Washington, Sept. 23—New regulations which will make clearer the workings of the Federal Securities Act are to be made public shortly.

Federal Trade Commission has made public a letter to a New York underwriter written in an attempt to clear up misunderstandings that have arisen in the liabilities imposed under Section 11 of the Securities Act and the extent of damages recoverable by any violation of its provisions.

The position of Baldwin B. Bane, chief of the securities division, may be summarized as follows:

1. Damages recoverable under Section 11 of the Securities Act must be computed on the basis of cost to the plaintiff, not exceeding the price at which the security was offered to the public. If the plaintiff had disposed of the security at a price in excess of the offering price no damages would be recoverable.

2. Both theoretically and practically there is no probability of an underwriter's liability exceeding in aggregate amount at which the securities were offered to the public.

3. The omission of a fact required to be stated in order to create liability under Section 11 must be either an omission of a fact required to be stated in the registration statement or it must be an omission of a fact which, omitted, renders the statements made in the registration statement misleading.

Bane's discussions explained that the object is to loan funds to the American exporter for the financing of Russian sales. Such purchases would be negotiated with the Amtorg Trading Co.

The main emphasis so far has been placed upon loans which would finance the export of agricultural surpluses. Other commodities and products, notably copper, electrical equipment, machinery and motor trucks, however, are likewise involved. The chief agricultural products which are increasingly in demand are cotton, wheat and dairy products. The position of the Reconstruction Finance Corp. in this connection, it was explained by Jesse Jones, chairman, has been simply to hold facilities open to exporters interested in this respect. Loans which would operate to help re-employment of United States workers also come within the category of favoring the United States.

LEADERS RISE ON ACTION AT WASHINGTON

New York, Sept. 23—Leading shares on the New York Stock Exchange in today's abbreviated session took on a new lease of life, with prices boosted from fractions to 2 points in fast trading.

The upturn, which was apparent right from the start, was due to the announcement from Washington of the government's plan to buy surplus cotton at 10 cents a pound and release frozen deposits in closed banks.

Virtually every group shared in the recovery movement. Railroad shares which had been under severe pressure earlier in the week came back strongly under the lead of New York Central, Illinois Central, Lackawanna and Atchison with gains running to 2 points.

The utility shares, another badly hard hit group, were in demand with Consolidated Gas, Public Service and American Water Works in the van of the upswing.

The liquors also showed an improved tone with National Distillers again touching par for a net gain of 8 points and generally steadying the rest of the group.

United States Steel, the motor shares including General Motors and Chrysler were stronger today and scored fractional gains.

The commodity markets gave the most bullish demonstration of all with cotton up from $2 to more than $3 a bale and wheat more than 2 cents a bushel over yesterday's close.

In the first hour stocks swung higher for advances of fractions to more than a point, but trading turned quiet after initial briskness. Alcohols and rails recorded the best gains.

American Commercial Alcohol and U. S. Industrial Alcohol rose over 2 points each. Other shares up around a point or more included American Can, American Smelting, American Telephone, Chrysler, New York Central, Case, Southern Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio and National Distillers. U. S. Steel was a point higher.

The British pound sterling was heavy, falling 1¼ cents to a cable rate of $4.75. French francs also eased .03 of a cent at 6.65 cents, and Dutch guilders, Belgian belgas and Swiss francs were moderately lower.

Sales to 11 a. m. approximated 830,000 shares.

The administration's plans to help cotton farmers 10 cents a pound on their holdings of this year's crop, on condition that they accept the government's crop reduction program, was interpreted in Wall st. not only as an indication that the President intended to further raise commodity prices but that drastic currency inflation was far less likely considered seriously.

This second notable step in the way of increasing farm prices, some bankers felt, might go a long way toward stilling the recent outcry for immediate currency expansion. The new cotton proposal, it was thought, probably would give value potential loans to farmers of some $400,000,000 should all of those still in possession of their cotton decide to co-operate.

The announced advance in quotations for steel bars, plates and shapes for delivery in the fourth quarter, while not unexpected in the financial district, was regarded to be of interest to railway managements and their possible orders for new equipment. The railroads previously have been timid about entering commitments for new rolling stock and rails because of the price situation.

Cotton Higher in New York Market

New York, Sept. 23—There was general trade and speculative buying of cotton futures today on Washington action which appears to insure a 10 cent minimum price. Buying was also helped by higher Liverpool cables. Futures finished off from their peaks for the day, up 20 to 27 points.

HUGE CURRENCY ISSUE LOOMS IN CAPITAL

Washington, Sept. 23 (U.S.)—President Roosevelt favors a reflationary plan under which the Federal Reserve Board would not only issue new currency but would also buy unlimited quantities of government bonds and issue new currency against them.

This plan, authorized under emergency acts of Congress, will be discussed fully by the President with his advisers at a White House conference Sunday night, which may result in the revamping of the nation's fiscal policy, Universal Service learns.

Closer advisers of the President say he favors this method of expanding the currency rather than the various inflationary schemes he and the Treasury have had under consideration for several weeks.

Under the bond-backed currency plan, it was estimated the government would issue new currency at a rate of $50,000,000 a week, until any shortage in the circulating medium had ended.

The President was said to favor this plan because it provided a safe method of expanding the currency without the danger of further expansion. Whenever the administration deemed sufficient currency was accumulated to meet the needs of the country, the issuance would be stopped and the dollar stabilized.

Cotton Price Boost for Other Farm Products

Washington, Sept. 23—Extension of the administration's plan for supporting cotton prices of 10 cents a pound to other major farm products today became the immediate objective in the government's efforts for lifting farm purchasing power quickly to keep pace with industrial price boosts.

The program will take the form of a gigantic effort to place a "bottom" under farm prices through extension of credit wherever it can be definitely coupled with production control.

This was disclosed as officials of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, inhibited over the cotton plan, centered their efforts on the subject with their hopes for greater relief for agriculture at the highest point in the last three months.

10 Commandments Loot of Thief

Quincy police today were hunting for the Ten Commandments.

An unusual assignment, they admitted, in contrast to their customary practice of seeking violators of the Commandments on which many of the laws are based.

As it happens, the Commandments, one of which is "Thou shalt Not Steal," were stolen. Spread on a roll of parchment, they were taken from the "Tiora," or sacred box in the Grafton st. Quincy synagogue, Congregation Beth Israel, in a break early yesterday. The loss was discovered by Custodian David A. Silverman, who notified police. He said nothing else was taken.

GOODWIN GETS LABOR'S HELP

Endorsements of Finance Commission Chairman Frank A. Goodwin by Brockton shoe labor organizations were made here today in a word game from Chicago that probably will not make an immediate issue of his threatened dismissal of Goodwin for "meddling" in shoe industry disputes.

The Shoe Workers' division of the Brockton Brotherhood of Shoe Workers and Allied Craftsmen, drawing membership from Brockton and 17 surrounding towns, voted unanimously its "resentment" of Gov. Ely's "unfounded" charges against Goodwin.

Implied confidence" in Goodwin was avowed by the Edge Trimmers.

President John Murphy of the Brockton Brotherhood of Shoe Workers said today that his organizations control board, meeting Monday, will take action then endorsing Goodwin.

Gov. Ely at Chicago said today that Goodwin will be given a hearing Wednesday before a regular session of governor and council. Goodwin's appearance will be voluntary, the governor indicated, with no question raised of his dismissal at this time.

Shade Job Is Let

The contract for equipping the many windows in the new $5,000,000 federal building with shades has been awarded in a Boston concern, the Crown Shade & Screen Co., it was announced today by Public Buildings Supervising Architect Louis A. Simon.

BOSTON STORES SALES TOTALS GAIN SHARPLY

Soaring September sales in Boston stores were reported today by Hugh Rutte, secretary of the New England recovery board, while police figures on increasing night auto traffic were officially interpreted as indicating a sharp upswing in downtown theater and restaurant business.

Simultaneously today 17 N. E. interest reversal department statistics were released showing citizens of Massachusetts and the country at large to be digging more freely into their pockets for automobiles, to-bacco, beer, soft drinks, chewing gum and movies.

Boston store sales, calculated on volume made by 37 representative firms, jumped 7½ per cent during the second week of September, Rutte declared.

Similarly, figured in comparison with the same week in 1932, showed the greatest month to account of trivial entry on the black ink side of the recovery ledger. An apparent sales decrease in Boston stores during the first week of the September has been more than offset, Rutte declared, by the encouraging showing of the weeks of September 11-22 inclusive.

Motorists homes today after an all-night job of untangling traffic in downtown Boston streets, police said, that the prosperity-laden restaurant and dine and dance trade are bringing a fast-growing share of surplus cash into the city these crisp September evenings.

Boston's influx of pleasure cars was so unexpectedly heavy that special details of police had to be rushed from several stations to clear streets that showed prospects of being clogged until early morning.

Federal figures on increased revenues from retail sales on which Uncle Sam levies a tax showed today a gain of $155,646,000 in the months of July and August. New England's share in this stimulated business was slightly more than its proportionate average, according to Boston officials.

NRA officials here today reported that the total of employees benefiting by adoption of Blue Eagle codes is now over 4,000,000 mark. More than 250 employers were listed today as new signers of NRA compacts with their respective textiles, bringing the total of employees thus signed to 132,800 in New England, excluding Connecticut.

ROADS TO ORDER $28,000,000 IN RAILS

The railroads of the country will soon place what is believed to be the largest steel rail order in history, it was learned in Boston today.

The order is a new step in President Roosevelt's battle for economic recovery, and the first taken to simulate the demand for capital goods by private industry.

It is said rail leaders have already promised to take 600,000 tons, amounting to over $28,000,000. Other railroads are expected to add to this until the total will range in the neighborhood of 1,000,000 tons, with a value of nearly $40,000,000.

The co-operation exhibited by government, steel and rail leaders is reported to be most gratifying. Federal loans to the railroads at reasonable rates of interest, smoothed the way. Then steel officials are said to have reexamined the costs, under NRA, and found that they may be able to reduce the price on steel rails, which will be announced by the end of October.

Long and bitter battles have been waged by the steel and railroad groups over the price of rails. Competent observers are convinced the advanced state of negotiations is excellent testimony of the support the recovery program is receiving on all sides.

Once the ice has been broken additional orders for locomotives and steel cars, as well as repair jobs, are likely to be forthcoming, it is believed, from government agencies, in all probability the R.F.C.

"OPERATOR 13"

Risking Both Their Lives, Gailliard Tries for Freedom

By Robert W. Chambers

READ THIS FIRST

Gail Loveless, beautiful and daring Union spy known as Operator 13, went to Culpeper, Va., to checkmate the work of Antonia Ford, a Confederate spy, who had kept Gen. Jeb Stuart so well informed that Gen. Stonewall, the Union cavalry leader, never was able to surprise him.

Operator 13 became Antonia Ford's house guest. At a party she met Capt. Jack Gailliard, gallant Confederate spy, whom she had once outwitted and captured, only to release him. He did not recognize her now because in their earlier encounters she had been disguised as a colored girl.

Now, however, he declared himself in love with her at sight, and she, already in love with Jesse, kissed him and promised that some time she would be his wife. Then she saw him ride away with Antonia Ford on a secret mission.

So well did she do her work that Antonia Ford was captured, but she was herself exposed in turn and fled, on horseback, for her life. With her brave colleague, John Babcock, she reached the quarters of Col. Sharpe, chief of the Federal Secret Service. After a day's rest she was summoned by Col. Sharpe and told that Capt. Gailliard was somewhere in the North, bearing plans and orders for an uprising of secretly organized Southern sympathizers, who were to seize Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Missouri. Of all Union spies, she alone knew Gailliard personally, or even knew what he looked like. Therefore she must hunt him down, obtain all his papers and either kill him, capture him (in which case he would be hanged) or persuade him to Canada.

Sick at heart, she accepted the task and went to New York. There, in a hotel, she met Gailliard and persuaded him to wait for her in her room while she "ran an errand." Locking him in, she raided his room and stole all his papers, which she turned over to her colleagues of the secret service. Gailliard, discovering their loss, prepared to flee to Montreal. Operator 13, knowing he could not escape unless she protected him, told him she would ride part way with him.

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

Gail said: "I am letting you go once more, on your parole of honor. And that ends your mischief for all time. Ends it as utterly as the gallows would end it. I am in love with you and you know it. But you cannot count on that. I could survive your death. I could love again in time. You see, I know myself. Life is all before me, and my art; and you—if you will let me love you. Will you?"

His face was aflame now, scarlet with shame, with anger, with disgust at himself.

"Yes," she said, "I am that nigger laundress, too, and the ragged boy in the hayloft. And I am the girl whose heart you won at Blythedale. And I am the girl you broke with me. But I was in love with you when I left that scar on your face in Martinsburg. There is no treachery in me, John Gailliard."

He moistened his dry lips. "No," he said, "I understand that."

"There is no chance for you unless I vouch for you," she went on, "saying," she whispered, "I shall not let you leave this car or this seat unless you give me your word of honor that you will attempt no further mischief against the United States—I shall not lift a finger to prevent your arrest when detectives board our train at Albany."

He remained silent for a long time.

Reaction from the tense strain left her deathly tired; she knew no better way to sleep than to lay her cheek against his shoulder. She wound her arm so tightly around his and took such a firm hold of his hand that she knew he could not move without awakening her.

For two hours she slumbered on his shoulder, uncertain until some movement he made awoke her.

"Where are we, darling?" she inquired.

"I think we are passing West Point."

"IF YOU LOVED ME—"

She lifted her head from his shoulder and pressed her nose against the dark window. And saw the lights of the old fortress glimmering across the river.

"I wish," she murmured, "you'd give me your parole and let us both go to sleep. You would if you loved me."

"If you loved me," said in a low voice, "you'd let me go."

"Go where, darling?"

"Back to my own people."

"How?"

"The first time the train slows down I could drop off."

"Is that what is in your mind, darling?"

"You know it, don't you?"

She sat up and bent forward to peer at him closely. Only one smoky lamp remained burning in the car, and the expiring flame gave scarcely any light. She could barely distinguish his shadowy features in the swaying obscurity of the rushing train. Suddenly sce felt afraid.

"If I let you go," she whispered, "you will forget me."

"I will love you as long as I am alive. And you know that, too."

The girl dropped her head back on his shoulder with a faint sigh.

"After all," she thought, "the way to the stars is hard to follow."

"Operator 13," he whispered, "are you still a little in love with me?"

"Yes, as far I am," she said in a sleepy voice.

The locomotive, thundering on through darkness, whistled derisively.

"When the train slows down will you let me take my chances?"

On the girl's lips there was a ghost of a smile. It faded to a tremor.

"Do you think that love —that love pardons everything, darling?" she faltered.

"Everything."

She moved her head on his shoulder and looked up at him, beginning to whimper a little and to reach into the pocket of her gown for her handkerchief.

He could see the glimmer of tears in her eyes; feel the convulsive clutching of her fingers on his. She lifted the handkerchief to her face, but he was already kissing the tears from her eyes.

"Dearest," she sighed, "I am breathed, "I want you to wear this bracelet in memory of our pledge."

There came a muffled click, followed by another; and his lips released from hers as though she had stung him. He started to rise, but dropped back into his seat beside her, his right wrist limp and relaxed, handcuffed to her left one.

"You made me do it," she said breathlessly, "you made me to kill you or drive you across the border. I'm trying to do my duty and save you, from me and try to make a traitor of me. Now will you give me your parole?"

He made no reply. She could feel the swelling muscles in his clenched right hand, where the steel band held it against her own. She could feel his whole supple, powerful body throbbing with rage and terrible despair.

"I do love you, but you forced me to choose," she whispered fiercely, "and I care more for the United States than I do for you!"

In the frightening darkness the locomotive whistled again. A lantern glimmered as a rush of air and cinders swept through the car from an opening door, and the conductor passed, calling the name his lantern shining on rows of empty seats.

He moved on slowly into the car ahead. The train whistle sounded again and again; broken began to check the speed of the car; a signal lamp flashed by; another light glided past more slowly; others more slowly still.

KNOCKED SENSELESS

Suddenly, young Gailliard jerked her handcuffed left wrist behind her back, pinned it there, clasping her waist with his manacled right arm. She snatched at the pistol in her right pocket, but he pressed his free left hand under her knees and sprang in his feet, cradling her while she struggled venomously to get at her pistol.

He was already at the open door and out on the platform with her before fright unsealed her writhing lips.

"Don't jump!" she panted. "You'll kill us both! Have you come crazy?" striking at his face with terrified fists. "Oh, darling, don't kill me!"

"Will you let me go?"

With all her strength she struck him in the face, dazing him. Then, half-dislocated, he jumped out into darkness where stars glimmered on shrouded water.

He also had watched the stars to long to fear the night.

But it seemed that the chaise road to the stars did not pass through starry waters. There was no splash when they landed, merely a violent shock. For that agile young man, gripping his writhing victim, had landed on a barrack of marsh hay; and the girl, falling on top of him, knocked the breath out of his body and the five wits out of her own noddle.

When at last he was able to breathe again he gasped out an inquiry regarding her bodily welfare, but got no reply from her. For when those two fighting youngsters landed, their heads had rapped together like a pair of coconuts, dazing him and knocking the five wits clean out of her; and now she lay senseless and inert across him, her slender left arm still manacled to his right arm, and doubled under her body.

He contrived to flounder upright, buried to the knees in the moldy marsh hay. Then he seated himself, drew her left arm from under him and let her sink back against his shoulder. As soon as he had satisfied himself that the fall had not broken her neck or her spine or dislocated her shoulder, he groped for the pockets in her disordered clothing, found her pistol and pocketbook and fished out of the latter a bunch of keys.

HANDS FREE

The second key he tried unlocked the handcuffs, and detaching it and leaving it attached to the clasping fastened the handcuffs into the swampy sheet of water at the foot of the stack of marsh hay. Her revolver, box of caps and ammunition he prudently pocketed. She had, in another pocket, deep and voluminous skirts, a thin packet of papers. He took these, also, professionally.

The girl was still unconscious when he lifted her once more and slid from the slippery mount of marsh hay.

When he had climbed up the embankment to the railroad tracks above he caught sight of the lights of a train only a little way down the track; and, what interested him still more, saw the rear lamps burning on a stand of train.

This must be their own train, still held at the station. Their own car, too, which was the last one. No other train had passed. He was certain of that.

Hugging her in his tired arms, he hurried over the cinder-bedded sleepers toward the station.

He could see a man in a cap and railroad uniform loitering on the dimly lighted platform.

A lantern dangled from his hand. There was another man there, too, seated on a bench. Both were gazing northward along the track toward the passing locomotive.

The rear platform of the sleeping car overlapped the station platform. Gailliard went around to the river side of the car, climbed up with his senseless burden, opened the rear door and stepped into the empty car.

EMBARRASSING TASK

There were their three valises, just as they had left them. But the Negro porter had made up both berths of their section, and the baggage stood in the aisle by the curtained lower berth.

John Gailliard laid Operator 13 on the gray sheets of the berth and placed a pillow under her head, which still wore the saucy little hat with its Blue Jay blossoms. There was only one thing to do with such a dangerous youngster, unless he left her a prisoner, knowing how seriously she had been hurt. But he couldn't bear to do that.

He hesitated; and his boyish face was very red and his hands unsteady as he drew off her shoes, her garters, her stockings, her hat and her jacket, full of burrs and hay. But he had become that time thoroughly afraid of the resourceful and dangerous young woman; and his determination to undress her, with the prudent view of making any immediate pursuit of himself impossible, when she revived.

Wounded in her self-esteem, piqued in her professional pride and deeply anxious for the safety of her country's cause, Operator 13 will be no unworthy adversary of the daring and ingenious Capt. Gailliard in this new chase of wits. Deeply as she loves him, she will not put his life above her duty—but she will save him if she can. Read Monday how she traveled him through the mazes of a great city.

Infection May Follow Ills of Foot

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

MANY OF MY readers will agree with me that a corn is an annoying and sometimes really distressing affliction. It is one of the most common ailments of modern civilization. It is probable that no profession confers more forefathers rarely, if ever had this trouble.

Dr. Copeland

In spite of the misery caused by a corn nothing is more neglected. If given any treatment it is usually some home remedy or old-fashioned concoction. The application of a corn salve, paring the corn, and other household measures are not curative, at most they may give temporary relief.

These methods sometimes lead to serious inflammation of the foot. Severe blood poisoning may result from the careless handling and home treatment of a corn.

Although a corn may form on any portion of the skin, it usually involves one of the toes. Frequently it is due to the wearing of improperly fitted shoes. They press upon the toes and cause irritation.

A corn is really nothing more than thickened skin that has reacted from long continued irritation. At times the corn is extremely painful, tender to the touch and considerably inflamed.

The corn is surrounded by a sac. Unless this is removed with the corn, the condition cannot be cured. It will be seen, then, why local applications are of so little value in overcoming this painful condition.

A recent article in the Journal of the American Medical Association states that too little attention is paid to this affliction. It points out that, as I have told you, complete cure is only possible by the thorough removal of the corn and sac by the surgical operation. The operation need cause no alarm or hesitancy as it can be done in the office. It is done under local anesthesia and can be performed in the surgeon's office. When the corn and sac are completely removed it is seldom that the affliction returns.

Wise and careful choice of footwear will insure good foot health. In addition to this, it will help the general hea th of the individual. It must not be overlooked that the Negro porter had been left in charge of the car and would soon return to certain nervous disorders and other general complaints.

Week-End Sprinkle, Boston Forecast

If you think the weather man is going to let you drive out into the country for even a single Sunday without a worry about the weather, you are too optimistic.

He reported today a storm over Kansas is moving our way and should arrive sometime tomorrow with a bit of a sprinkle. The official prediction is:

Fair tonight. Sunday probably cloudy; not much change in temperature. The prevailing winds, of course, are out of the west.

BYRD IS GIVEN SKIIS, GYRO

Skiing equipment donated by the Dartmouth Outing Club, and a specially-built autogiro presented by Harold Pitcairn, have been rounded out the supplies to be taken by Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd on his second Antarctic expedition.

Selection of the personnel for the South Polar flash has already been completed, and the first of his Fokills, the ship Bear, is scheduled to sail from the Navy Yard Monday.

In a letter expressing appreciation for a check for $200 from the Dartmouth Outing Club, Byrd said he would try to bring back a pair of skiis with which he had practiced last year in the Antarctic.

The autogiro was christened by the wife of Commander Pitcairn, at a ceremony in Camden, N. J., and is expected to be flown here today. Its installation on one of the expedition's vessels.

V. F. W. Give Bonus Plea to Roosevelt

Washington, Sept. 23—President Roosevelt was presented with the legislative program of the Veterans of Foreign Wars calling for immediate payment of the bonus.

James E. Van Zandt, commander, in presenting the program asked a special session of Congress to enact it.

Aimee Gets 1 Star, and Dave 3 From Theater Critic

New York, Sept. 23 (AP)—The David Huttons are in town, on opposite sides of the street.

David is singing songs at the Palace. Mrs. Hutton—Sister Aimee is up the street at the Capitol, dividing honors with a feature picture and the usual vaudeville bill.

The evangelist of Angelus Temple, making her first appearance on the stage of a Broadway theater, played to full houses and appreciative audiences on her first day of a week's engagement. So did Hubby Dave. A critic raised David "three stars" and Aimee one on their acts.

"Certainly, I get $5000 a week for these appearances," Aimee told her public. "I wish it were $50,000. It all goes to the glory of God."

Mrs. Hutton's "routine" consists of a bit of personal history, a prayer for the sick among the city and the nation, and the playing by the orchestra of a hymn.

The evangelist, wearing white satin and carrying a snow-white bible, appears against a backdrop of a church window, with the shadow of a cross cast upon it.

At the Palace, Whata-Man Hutton sang "Talk of the Town" and in the course of the act symphonically wondered "Who's Kissing Her Now." The box office reported the crowd was giving Hutton quite a play, and that receipts had been way over those last week same day.

Living Costs Lag Far Below '29

New York, Sept. 23 (AP)—Living costs advanced 2.3 per cent in August, the national industrial conference board said today.

The board noted, however, that living costs of the month were 23.6 per cent below those of August, 1929.

The August, 1933, purchasing power of the dollar was computed at 133 cents, compared with 133.9 cents last April.

Infection May Follow Ills of Foot

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

MANY OF MY readers will agree with me that a corn is an annoying and sometimes really distressing affliction. It is one of the most common ailments of modern civilization. It is probable that no profession confers more forefathers rarely, if ever had this trouble.

Dr. Copeland

In spite of the misery caused by a corn nothing is more neglected. If given any treatment it is usually some home remedy or old-fashioned concoction. The application of a corn salve, paring the corn, and other household measures are not curative, at most they may give temporary relief.

These methods sometimes lead to serious inflammation of the foot. Severe blood poisoning may result from the careless handling and home treatment of a corn.

Although a corn may form on any portion of the skin, it usually involves one of the toes. Frequently it is due to the wearing of improperly fitted shoes. They press upon the toes and cause irritation.

A corn is really nothing more than thickened skin that has reacted from long continued irritation. At times the corn is extremely painful, tender to the touch and considerably inflamed.

The corn is surrounded by a sac. Unless this is removed with the corn, the condition cannot be cured. It will be seen, then, why local applications are of so little value in overcoming this painful condition.

A recent article in the Journal of the American Medical Association states that too little attention is paid to this affliction. It points out that, as I have told you, complete cure is only possible by the thorough removal of the corn and sac by the surgical operation. The operation need cause no alarm or hesitancy as it can be done in the office. It is done under local anesthesia and can be performed in the surgeon's office. When the corn and sac are completely removed it is seldom that the affliction returns.

Wise and careful choice of footwear will insure good foot health. In addition to this, it will help the general hea th of the individual. It must not be overlooked that the Negro porter had been left in charge of the car and would soon return to certain nervous disorders and other general complaints.

Week-End Sprinkle, Boston Forecast

If you think the weather man is going to let you drive out into the country for even a single Sunday without a worry about the weather, you are too optimistic.

He reported today a storm over Kansas is moving our way and should arrive sometime tomorrow with a bit of a sprinkle. The official prediction is:

Fair tonight. Sunday probably cloudy; not much change in temperature. The prevailing winds, of course, are out of the west.

How to Defeat 'Sure' Game

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

BRIDGE players as a class are perhaps too prone to be guilty of shallow surface reasoning. They frequently fail to find the defensive play which will beat even a "sure" hand. However, occasionally a player does rise to the heights of real brilliancy and make a play which stamps him as belonging in the master class.

Take as an example a brilliant and unusual defense on a hand recently played at Crockford's Club, New York, in which Mr. Walter Malowan, one of the holders of the American Whist League Team-of-Four title, held the West hand.

South, Dealer.
East and West vulnerable.

	♠ 1743 ♥ 1852 ♦ A 9 ♣ K Q 7
Mr. Malowan ♠ A K Q 5 ♥ 10 9 7 ♦ 10 2 ♣ A 8 3	♠ 9 2 ♥ Q ♦ Q J 8 7 5 3 ♣ 9 6 5 4 2
	♠ 10 6 ♥ A K 6 5 4 ♦ A 6 5 4 ♣ J 10

South was playing the hand at a contract of four hearts. A superficial view might be that West had a cheap save at four spades, but this is a very superficial view, indeed.

An Opening trump lead and a continuation of trumps when either opponent got in would give North and South three heart tricks, two diamonds, and two clubs. In other words, West could only cash six tricks because North and South would not think of permitting him to utilize either of Dummy's trumps for ruffing purposes.

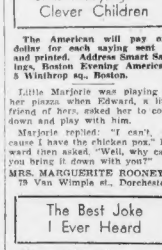
Ideal Friendship Quilt
By LAURA WHEELER

In the early days of quiltmaking, certain types of quilts found special favor. The album quilt was one of these. True to its name, it served the same purpose as the old-time autograph album. Friends embroidered their names —sometimes in cross stitch, sometimes in outline stitch—in the center of the block, which was always of a plain material.

The Album Flower pattern is an ideal Friendship quilt, for, besides having a center square for the autograph, it is made of scrap, thus permitting each friend to contribute her own materials.

Pattern 547 comes to you with complete, simple instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for piecing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.



PATTERN NO. 547

Send 10 cents for this pattern to Boston Evening American Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth ave., New York city.

$23,000 outfit and four feature pictures are run off for him and his family privately each week—and all the newsreels and Mickey Mouse releases . . . Gen'l McCoy who supervised the Nicaragua elections, is to head a mission leaving shortly to investigate the Cuban situation and report back direct to the President . . . The White House is determined to change the government of Hury Long, Roosevelt, himself, having been reported to state recently that the Kingfish has no place in the American scheme of things.

Bible Conference Will Open Sunday

Three distinguished speakers will address the Boston Interdenominational Bible conference, conducted by the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, which will open in the Park St. Church tomorrow night.

It will continue with three daily sessions until Friday evening.

The speakers are: the Rev. James M. Gray of Chicago, and Dr. Cortland Myers of Passaic, Rev. J. M. Gray

Rev. J. M. Gray dean, California, and the Rev. Henry Ostrom, field lecturer on the Moody Bible institute staff.

Dr. Gray, well known in Boston, is recognized as an author, Biblical scholar and preacher. For 20 years he has been the head of the Institute in Chicago.

Dr. Myers for 14 years pastor of Tremont Temple, is now pastor of Immanuel Baptist Church in Pasadena.

Dr. Ostrom was the associate of the Rev. Dr. Wilbur Chapman in the simultaneous evangelistic campaigns.

SLEEP ONE HOUR EXTRA SUNDAY

(Picture on Page 8)

At this time tomorrow, it will be only 23 hrs. and 59 min. from now.

For as you already know, but may forget, daylight saving time ends at 2 a. m. tomorrow. At that hour the government has to pay back that hour it borrowed last April.

Theoretically, you may sleep an extra hour tomorrow morning. And for the next seven months it should be a little less difficult reading a railroad timetable and getting the baby to go to sleep.

At the risk of being trite, we suggest turning the clocks back an hour when going to bed tonight. Peg Entwistle. That hurts the clocks. Oh, well, do whatever you think best.
